Programme length: 21 months

Summary of programme aims

Through individual and group discussion the programme aims to firstly question those mannerisms of practice accrued prior to coming to Reading. Through critical debate students will be enabled to redefine their practice towards the production of singularity.

Transferable skills

Through the exercise of initiative and personal responsibility, considerable organisational skills will be developed including working to a brief, meeting deadlines, planning, team working, problem solving and career management.

Programme content

Year one of the 21 month programme runs from October to the end of June. During this year students will work in the studios and workshops (FAM1S) where assumptions and achievements in practice will be challenged. Students will write two contextual/self-appraisal essays of about 500 words per term (FAM1C). Year two runs from July to June. Full access to the studios during the summer period prefaces the reconfiguration of a more critically aware and mature body of work which will be built upon throughout year two (FAM2S) culminating in the Final Exhibition. The six contextual/self-appraisal essays (FAM2C) will complement and support the studio achievements. Throughout the programme students will document their work photographically.

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@IL) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Programme Directors, the Careers Advisory Service, the University's Special Needs Advisor, Study Advisors, Hall Wardens and the Students' Union.

In the Fine Art Department each student is allocated an appropriate working space normally within the main building. There are sculpture, wood and print workshops, two darkrooms and in-house computer facilities. The department is equipped for digital, video, sound and Super8 film editing. Several bookable spaces are available for installation and time based work. There are directed visits to museums and galleries. Each student is issued with a programme handbook.

Career prospects

Most students continue as professional artists, though others have successfully pursued careers within the Creative Industries.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

Informal opportunities to spend time abroad occur from time to time as do opportunities to exhibit.

Educational aims of the programme

In order to have been offered a place at Reading the student will already have achieved a high standard of singularity in their personal practice as an artist and our aim is to help to refine this potential, both intellectual and practical so that the student can, with confidence, find their place in the professional world soon after leaving. We will seek to implement these aims by challenging preconceptions, by encouraging the student to speculate in an innovative way and through critical analysis and coherent argument, develop their personal mode of expression.
