Summary of programme aims

The central aim of the programme is to develop students' critical understanding of film and modern theatre as cultural forms in their own right and in terms of their historical relationships. Students will become familiar with the varied achievements of film and theatre practitioners, developing critical skills through close study of films, plays and theatre performances, underpinned by debates and theories which have influenced analysis of theatre and cinema. Students also undertake practical work, closely informed by critical issues ('critical practice'), which is designed both to extend understanding of how film and theatre create meaning, and to develop appropriate practical expertise.

Transferable skills

The University's Strategy for Teaching and Learning has identified a number of generic transferable skills which all students are expected to have developed by the end of their degree programme. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to develop their skills relating to career management, communication (both written and oral), information handling, problem-solving, team working and use of information technology.

In addition, on completion of this programme, students are expected to have developed a range of specific transferable skills including: critical analysis and coherent argument; the ability to formulate and evaluate their own arguments and those of others; researching and evaluating evidence; effective communication using the methods of theatre and/or video; undertaking self-directed, independent work; developing projects through co-operation and dialogue; taking leadership and management roles; effective time management.

Programme content

Each Part of the degree comprises 120 credits. At Part 1 students will normally take Course A and Course B. Students taking Course B only may be admitted to the degree but will be ineligible for the critical practice modules. Course B may be taken either as 40 credits (in which case students will take FT1CHA only) or as 60 credits. For students taking Course B as 40 credits, the remaining credits can be made up from modules available elsewhere in the University. In Parts 2 and 3 (and/or 4), up to 20 credits can be taken from modules available elsewhere in the University.

Part One (three terms)		Certificate Level	Credits	Level

Progression requirements

In order to progress from Part 1 to Part 2, a student shall normally be required to:

- achieve at least 40% in FT1CHA;
- achieve at least 40% in FT1PFT to proceed with Critical Practice;
- achieve an overall average of 40% in 120 credits taken in Part 1; and
- achieve not less than 30% in any module taken in Part 1, except that marks of less than 30% in a total of 20 credits will be condoned provided that the candidate has pursued the course for the module with reasonable diligence and has not been absent from the examination without reasonable cause.

In order to progress from Part 2 to Part 3, a student shall normally be required to:

- achieve an overall average of 40% in 120 credits taken in Part 2; and
- achieve not less than 30% in any module taken in Part 2, except that marks of less than 30% in a total of 20 credits will be condoned provided that the candidate has pursued the course for the module with reasonable diligence and has not been absent from the examination without reasonable cause.

In addition, students intending to present a practical Independent Project in Part 3 must achieve an aggregate 40% in the related Practical Option, including a pass in the practical component.

Summary of teaching and assessment

Teaching styles are varied to encourage active engagement by students, to encourage independence and foster initiative and effective time management. Interaction in seminars is central to the programme and weekly seminars are common to all critical modules, with lectures designed to provide informing perspectives for the module and for individual seminars. Theatre visits are integral to the programme. Practical modules are taught through group and individual projects, based on workshops, group work and tutorials. Assessment of critical modules in Part 2 and 3 is mainly by coursework, which includes formal essays as well as other written assignments such take-away exam questions. In practical modules assessment is by a combination of practical work and critical documentation. In Course B at Part 1 assessment is by coursework and formal examination. The Dissertation and Independent Project modules in Part 3 are supported by individual supervision.

Final assessment will be based on Parts 2 and 3, each of which will count for 50%.

Assessment criteria for each of the Levels are given in the Departmental Handbook.

Admission Requirements

A minimum of 300 points from 3 full A Levels. These must include a Grade B (or better) in at least one of the following subjects: English Literature, Drama, Theatre Studies, Film Studies.

As an alternative 340 points from A Levels and no more than two AS Levels. The full A Levels must include a Grade B (or better) in at least one of the following subjects: English Literature, Drama, Theatre Studies, Film Studies.

Admissions Tutors: Dr Teresa Murjas, Dr John Gibbs and Dr John Bull

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Learning Resource Centre with some 200 workstations. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, the Careers Advisory Service, the University's Special Needs Advisor, Study Advisors, Hall Wardens and the Students' Union.

Students in the Department of Film, Theatre & Television receive a Handbook, which gives details of the Programme, guidance on study skills such as note-taking and essay writing, and information about staff, facilities, and sources of specialised help within the University, such as the Study Skills Advisor and the Counselling Service. Academic feedback and guidance is given through detailed written comments. Academic and personal support for students in their studies is also provided through the University's Personal Academic Record (PAR) Scheme, in which students meet their personal tutors regularly to review their progress. From a highly structured introduction in Part 1, in Parts 2 and 3 students take increasing responsibility for their learning and module choice. In practical work the move to individual projects is supported by detailed supervision and advice. The Department has a range of film/video viewing rooms and specialist studio and theatre spaces for practical drama, together with extensive technical facilities for small scale production in theatre and film/video, including digital video equipment. It also houses an extensive collection of films and television programmes. The Library, which has buildings on both the Whiteknights and Bulmershe campuses, has an extensive collection of printed materials as well as electronic databases. The Bulmershe Library holds one of the country's leading academic collections of film and modern theatre material. Specialist subject librarians are available to give students advice and guidance to library resources.

Career prospects

Since Film & Theatre is not a vocational programme, career possibilities are very wide ranging. Graduates find that the specific as well as the transferable skills developed by the programme enable them to enter many fields of work including education, publishing, journalism, the media, management, administration, public relations, advertising and the performance industries. A Reading Film & Theatre degree provides graduates with a range of communication, analytical, practical and social skills that will serve them in good stead in the world of work. A number of graduates each year go on to further professional training, academic study and research.

Educational aims of the programme .

The central aim of the programme is to develop students' critical understanding of film and modern theatre as cultural forms in their own right and in terms of their historical relationships. It aims to produce students who can express this understanding in speech and writing and also through practical work. Students will become familiar with the varied achievements of film and theatre practitioners, developing critical skills through close study of films, plays, theatre performances, and some aspects of television, underpinned by debates and theories which have influenced analysis of theatre and cinema. At the same time they will undertake practical work, closely informed by critical issues ('critical practice'), which is designed both to extend understanding of how film and theatre create meaning, and to develop appropriate practical expertise.

Programme Outcomes

The programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, skills, qualities and other attributes in the following areas:

Knowledge and Understanding

A. Knowledge and understanding of: <ol style="list-style-type: none">1. Film and theatre texts from a range of national and cultural contexts, mainly produced between the late nineteenth century and the present day.2. Please note - This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in the module description and in the programme handbook. The University reserves the right to modify this specification in unforeseen circumstances, or where the process of academic development and feedback from students, quality assurance processes or external sources, such as professional bodies, requires a change to be made. In such circumstances, a revised specification will be issued.
