Summary of programme aims

The History element of the syllabus aims to familiarise students with an extremely broad chronological range, whilst providing them with the opportunity of specialisation in particular periods and topics of British, European and American history. It also enables students to pursue their own interests through independent study and a substantial dissertation. Using a variety of approaches to the study of history, students will develop the ability to analyse change over time, to understand the nature of causal relationships, and to handle comparative, cross-cultural and abstract concepts. Additionally, students will refine the following subject-based skills: the collection and synthesis of large quantities of information; the critical evaluation of primary and secondary sources; the making of effective and substantial judgements, and engagement in debate on historical issues.

The History of Art element aims to provide a framework for examining changing categories of art, architecture and visual artefacts in different places and times. It will develop advanced skills in analysing visual culture and embed the examination of its production and reception within distinct cultural and social contexts. It will foster a critical understanding of the relationship between contemporary conceptions of art, architecture, visual artefacts and culture, and those held elsewhere in other periods, promoting a conception of history of art as a dynamic discipline encompassing divergent, sometimes conflicting, approaches and views.

Transferable skills

The University's Strategy for Teaching and Learning has identified a number of generic transferable skills which all students are expected to have developed by the end of their degree programme. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to enhance their skills relating to career management, communication (both written and oral), information handling, numeracy, problem-solving, team working and use of information technology.

History is a discipline that lends itself to critical judgement and problem-solving, both through personal engagement with issues and through dialogue and group discussion. Also integral is the collection, collation and analysis of substantial quantities of material and its communication and presentation. History also prompts an awareness of numeracy through chronology, periodisation, and basic quantification. In addition, students utilise powerful tools of research, analysis, and presentation associated with information technology through the location and retrieval of bibliographic and source material, the production and presentation of written work and, where appropriate, the use of more sophisticated databases and exploitation of the internet.

In the History of Art and Architecture programme, students will develop advanced skills in visual analysis, learning how to recognize visual sources and communicate their qualities in oral and written forms. They will be able to articulate and substantiate independent points of view, based on evaluating evidence and using reasoned arguments. They will learn how to organize their own work schedule, to become self-motivating and to take independent initiatives to develop their studies. They will understand ways of improving learning and performance, by identifying personal strengths and weaknesses, be skilled at time management, and have developed strategies for working within a team and alongside their peers. The programme will include opportunities to develop skills at making oral presentations, to use visual sources in support of an argument and to deploy IT, with a particular emphasis on visual images.

Summary of teaching and assessment

At Part 1, teaching is by lectures and seminars. For those taking the Directed Study in History, individual supervision is provided. Assessment is by a mixture of coursework and timed examination. At Part 2 teaching is by lecture, seminar and tutorial and for Part 3 by seminar. Assessment is by a mixture of coursework, portfolios of work, and timed examination. Course work is normally weighted 20%; the details are given in module descriptions. The dissertation is supervised in a series of tutorials with an individual supervisor and is assessed as coursework and through oral presentation.

The conventions for classification are included in the Programme Handbooks but you should note that weighting between Part 2 and Part 3 for classification purposes is 33% and 67%.

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@IL) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by the Careers Advisory Service, the University's Special Needs Advisor, Study Advisors, Hall Wardens and the Students' Union. Support for students in their studies is provided through the University's Personal Academic Record (PAR) Scheme, in which students meet their personal tutors regularly to review their progress.

Within the providing departments, additional support is provided through subject-specific reading rooms containing essential course texts, reference works, some current periodicals and photocopying facilities. There is also a slide library containing 84,000 slides from all periods of art and architecture history which students will consult as part of their studies. It includes resources in video tapes and computers. First hand study of works of art is provided through particular classes taught in museums, art galleries or on architectural visits and by a period of study at a centre abroad, as well as through the department's own collections mainly of drawings. Each student is assigned a Course Adviser, normally their personal tutor, to advise on their choice of modules within the programme, supported by comprehensive Programme Handbooks issued to each student individually which include extensive advice on study skills. In the History Department, students are supported and advised by the Degree Course Tutor. There is also full written feedback on essay work. Each module teacher gives personal guidance and feedback and sends termly reports on progress to Personal Tutors for discussion with students.

Liaison Officers for both History and History of Art coordinate the programme.

Career prospects

A number of specialised careers are open to History and History of Art graduates, such as jobs in museums, auction houses, and increasingly the heritage and leisure industries. Their visual skills also make them attractive to the advertising industry. In addition the skills which History and History of Art graduates acquire, such as analytical abilities, problem solving, research skills, independence and adaptability, mean they are sought after for jobs in a wide range of fields, including publishing, teaching, social work, accountancy, personnel, banking and commerce, retailing, marketing, IT, civil service and local government. A number of students go on to post-graduate study in either History or History of Art, at MA and also at PhD level, both at Reading and elsewhere.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

Students in History and the History of Art have the opportunity to spend a period of study abroad during Part 2 as part of the Socrates scheme.

Educational aims of the programme

The programme aims to provide a solid framework for exploring the broad sweep of post-classical history and the complex interplay between cause and effect in the historical process and, also, the changing nature and functions of the visual arts in Western culture. The History component develops the student's knowledge of events, structures, and historical agents or actors and a critical awareness of the variety of ways in which the past has been interpreted in historical writing. The History of Art component aims to promote a critical understanding of the visual art, artistic and architectural practices, and aesthetic traditions of Western society. It will relate the production and reception of works of art to specific aspects of the culture and society in which they were produced. It will foster a critical understanding of the relationship between contemporary conceptions of art and architecture and those of the past. It aims to stimulate the student's academic and personal development and to extend and deepen their range of intellectual skills and abilities.

Programme Outcomes

The programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, qualities and other attributes in the following areas:

Knowledge and Understanding

A. Knowledge and understanding of: <ol style="list-style-type: none">1. The broad sweep of post-classical history and its principal divisions.2. a broad range of Western art and architecture from the Middle Ages to the present day and in comparison to selected cultures in other times and places.3. A range of historical eras and cultures and specialist knowledge of certain chosen periods of art history.4. The nature of debate and dispute in historical writing and key issues and current priorities in art and architectural history including conflicting interpretations and specific methods of analysis germane to history of art and architecture.5. The nature and variety of historical sources as defined by period and culture and methods of interpreting visual artefacts and comprehending their functions and meaning.6. Technical language of the subjects.	Teaching/learning methods and strategies Basic knowledge is provided through formal lectures in Part 1, supported by set tasks for practising the elementary analysis of written texts and visual artefacts. Feedback is initially through tutorials, seminars and through formative coursework. Specialist knowledge and deeper understanding is fostered in the guided selection of period options at Part 2, where the teaching is seminar and discussion based. Feedback is provided through written responses to seminar participation and in formative assessed work. In later parts of the programme, and beginning at Part 2, students will take increasing responsibility for their own learning, fostered through the guided selection of increasingly specialised options and independent study, including a dissertation. Feedback is provided through tutorials and written reports on seminar presentations. Assessment Most knowledge is tested through a combination of coursework and unseen formal examinations. A dissertation and oral presentation also contribute.

Skills and other attributes

B. Intellectual skills – able to:

1. Structure, analyse and solve problems.
2. analyse and interpret written documents and visual artefacts and be able to demonstrate how primary and secondary sources interrelate.
3. use documentary and visual resources as evidence.
4. plan, organise and write a coherent argument.
5. transfer appropriate skills and methods from one topic within the subject to another.
6. plan, organise and conduct an independent enquiry.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

How to analyse and interpret written documents and visual artefacts is constantly exemplified in formal lectures and is explored in seminars from the start of Part 1. Lectures and seminars will also demonstrate how to use different types of evidence in the construction of arguments and students will develop advanced skills in this through seminar presentations and coursework tasks. In the History of Art component, such skills are additionally fostered through opportunities to study visual artefacts at first hand including in the compulsory module involving study abroad. The ability to transfer knowledge from one area of the programme to another is evidence of high level performance. The ability to organise and structure arguments is emphasised throughout but particularly in compulsory modules and through modules in independent study and the dissertation.

Assessment

1-4 are constantly assessed in all parts of the programme including coursework and unseen examinations which also include compulsory questions analysing visual artefacts. 5 and 6 are particularly assessed in compulsory modules in independent study and the dissertation.

C. Practical skills – able to:

1. Develop and carry out individual research programmes and strategies.
2. identify, locate and record historical documents and visual sources.
3. memorise and be able to recall key features of different historical records and visual resources.
4. identify appropriate resources including the internet for the study of historical aspects and works of art.
5. Engage in group discussion and debate.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Identifying and interpreting historical records and visual artefacts and sources is taught from Part 1. This is a particular feature of the Approaches module in History, and in History of Art, assessed tasks test the student's ability to find and select appropriate visual evidence for analysis and comparison. Such skills are additionally fostered in Part 2 where greater emphasis is placed on increasingly complex and sophisticated analyses, including the ability to recall and use visual and other data from often disparate and widely separated sources and locations. 3 and 4 are taught throughout the course but particularly emphasised in the independent study tasks in Part 2 and dissertation in Part 3. 5 is featured throughout the programme.

Assessment

1-4 are assessed in all coursework, including an oral presentation related to the dissertation, and by written examinations and 4 is assessed in independent study tasks.

D. Transferable skills – able to:

1. use IT (word processing, and the internet)
2. evaluate evidence and use reasoned arguments.
3. describe evidence from visual sources in oral and written forms
4. give oral presentations
5. work as part of a team
6. use of library and archival sources
7. manage their time
8. plan their career.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

The use of IT is embedded throughout the programme. 2 and 3 are essential to success in all parts of the programme. 4 and 5 are increasingly emphasised in Part 2 and play a key role in Part 3, and 5 is a key skill in the compulsory module Study Trip Abroad. Career planning is emphasised in Part 2. Library and internet skills are required in the independent study module in Part 2 and the dissertation in level 3. Time management is essential for the effective completion of the programme.

Assessment

2 and 3 are assessed throughout in coursework and examinations. 4 is assessed in Part 3 and 6 in Part 2 and 3. The other skills are not assessed directly but their effective use will enhance performance in later modules.

Please note - This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in the module description and in the programme handbook. The University reserves the right to modify this specification in unforeseen circumstances, or where the process of academic development and feedback from students, quality assurance processes or external sources, such as professional bodies, requires a change to be made. In such circumstances, a revised specification will be issued.
