

PHILOSOPHY AND INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

UCAS code: LV52

For students entering Part 1 in 2007

Awarding Institution:	The University of Reading
Teaching Institution:	The University of Reading
Relevant QAA subject benchmarking group(s):	Philosophy, Politics
Faculty of Arts and Humanities	Programme length: 3 years
Date of specification:	September 2007
Programme Director:	Mr A.D.Williams
Programme Advisor:	Dr A. Cromartie
Board of Studies:	Philosophy and Politics and International Relations
Accreditation:	Not appropriate

Summary of programme aims

Both Departments share the aims and objectives laid down for the Reading graduate in the University's Strategy for Teaching and Learning. The Philosophy strand of the programme specifically aims to provide a grounding in the subject, enabling students to examine critically fundamental beliefs about truth and reality, right and wrong, to comprehend concepts essential for philosophical investigation, to develop an understanding of central philosophical problems, texts and figures, to develop an aptitude and enthusiasm for the subject, to engender a sense of belonging to a community of enquiry, and to prepare where appropriate for postgraduate study. The programme provides a supportive learning environment with full access to welfare, pastoral and careers support.

Three bridge modules (Contemporary Political Philosophy, International Ethics, Dissertation) offer students an opportunity to reflect on philosophical issues in International Relations.

The International Relations strand aims to give students an appreciation of the normative, methodological and institutional issues involved in the study of politics in relation to the subfield of international relations. Students focus on compulsory modules in international relations and associated optional modules. The strand also provides a supportive learning environment with full access to welfare, pastoral and careers support.

Transferable skills

The University's Strategy for Teaching and Learning has identified a number of generic transferable skills which all students are expected to have developed by the end of their degree programme. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to enhance their skills relating to career management, communication (both written and oral), information handling, numeracy, problem-solving, team working and use of information technology.

The Philosophy strand will help students develop skills such as: presenting a coherent talk delivered from notes, producing concise and accurate written reports, the ability to critically discuss particular issues and arguments, and to engage in discussion of each other's responses as well as articulate the student's own views. The Philosophy strand also encourages the ability to handle abstract ideas and utilise problem-solving skills.

The International Relations strand lends itself to critical judgement and problem-solving, both through personal engagement with issues and through dialogue and group discussion. Students are encouraged to defend and to challenge established positions through the collection, collation and analysis of substantial quantities of material, the rigour of argument, and effective communication and presentation. The disciplines also prompt an awareness of numeracy through chronology, periodisation, and basic quantification. The strand develops students' familiarity with information technology in the production and presentation of their work and develops their skills in using computers for the location and retrieval of bibliographic and source material, accessing sophisticated databases and exploiting the internet.

Progression requirements

To progress from Part 1 to Part 2, students must achieve each of the following:

- (a) an overall average of at least 40% across the 120 credits in Part 1;
- (b) a mark of at least 30% in individual modules amounting to not less than 100 credits taken in Part 1;
- (c) an average of at least 40% in the Philosophy modules taken;
- (d) a mark of at least 40% in individual Philosophy modules amounting to not less than 40 credits in Part 1;
- (e) a mark of at least 40% in each compulsory International Relations module at Part 1.

To progress from Part 2 to Part 3, students must achieve each of the following:

- (a) an overall average of at least 40% across the 120 credits in Part 2;
- (b) a mark of at least 30% in individual modules amounting to not less than 100 credits taken in Part 2;
- (c) an average of at least 40% in the Philosophy modules taken;
- (d) a mark of at least 40% in individual Philosophy modules amounting to not less than 40 credits in Part 2;
- (e) a mark of at least 35% in each Politics and International Relations module at Part 2.

Summary of teaching and assessment

Teaching within the Philosophy programme combines lectures, small group seminars and essay supervisions, with appropriate visual aides and course materials being provided throughout. The final assessment for all Philosophy modules in all Parts (bar the Dissertation in Part 3) is by a combination of assessed coursework and unseen examination.

All International Relations modules other than Study of Politics and the Dissertation are assessed by a mixture of coursework (25%) and examination (75%).

Weighting between Part 2 and Part 3 for classification purposes is 33% and 67%.

The University's honours classification is as follows:

Mark	Interpretation
70-100%	First class
60-69%	Upper second class
50-59%	Lower second class
40-49%	Third class
35-39%	Below Honours standard
0-34%	Fail

Admissions Requirements

Entrants to this programme are normally required to have obtained:

Grade C or better in English in GCSE; and achieved

UCAS Tariff: 300 points from three subjects, and 320 from 3 A level and 1 AS level

International Baccalaureat: 30 points

Irish Leaving Certificate: BBCC in 5 Higher Level subjects

Two AS grades are accepted in place of one A-Level

Mature Students: Applications from mature students are welcomed. A mature applicant is more likely to receive an offer of a place if he or she has undertaken recent study, for example 2 or more A levels or an Access course, but each case is assessed on its relative merits. We recommend you contact an admissions tutor as soon as possible to discuss your individual circumstances.

International Students: Applications from international candidates are welcomed. If you are not offering A levels we advise you to contact either the EU or the international admissions tutor before applying in order to discuss the acceptability of your qualifications.

Admissions Tutors: Dr. P. Stratton-Lake (Philosophy), Dr J.S.Golub (Politics)

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@IL) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, the Careers Advisory Service, the University's Special Needs Advisor, Study Advisors, Hall Wardens and the Students' Union.

Within the Philosophy strand, information and guidance is offered through the Part 1 Handbook, and the B.A Course Handbook (covering Parts 2 and 3). There are also a Part 1 co-ordinator and an Honours Course co-ordinator, who can be consulted on module choices within each part of the programme. Finally, the Part-time Programme co-ordinator is available to assist with all issues relating to the Part-time course.

Within the International Relations strand, students are provided with Politics Handbooks that outline the programme, provide guidance on study skills, and contain information on staff, facilities and specialised sources of help within the University. Additional support is given in the study of Politics module in Part 2. Support for students in their studies is provided through the University's Personal Academic Record (PAR) scheme, in which students meet their personal tutors regularly to review their progress.

Career prospects

This degree can lead to a wide range of jobs, such as the public services (civil service, local government, public corporations, hospital management, etc), the social services (child care, youth employment, probation, etc), advertising, journalism, radio and television, management traineeships in industry, professions such as accountancy and law (barristers and solicitors alike), banking and insurance, and various research agencies. There is some evidence that IT firms appreciate the logical and analytic skills of developed especially in Philosophy's Logic module.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

Students may choose to spend part of their second year studying at a University in another European country, via the Socrates programme. Subject to availability of places, there may also be the opportunity to study for a semester in the United States under the American Studies exchange programme. While such exchanges may involve some additional financial expenditures and some adjustments to coursework at Reading, the Department believes these exchanges offer an excellent opportunity to broaden educational and life experience. In the first instance, interested students see their personal tutor.

Educational aims of the programme

The central aim of the Philosophy component is to cultivate the ability to do, and not just to read, Philosophy. It introduces students to terms and concepts essential for philosophical investigation, exposes them to the distinctive nature of philosophical inquiry, develops a basic understanding of some central philosophical problems, and introduces some major figures from the history of philosophy. It encourages students to reflect on philosophical issues in International Relations. A programme of study is provided which introduces progressive intellectual challenges at each new level and requires students to study in more depth some aspects of Philosophy in which they have a greater interest.

The International Relations component aims to provide a thorough degree level education in international relations. It aims to produce graduates who have experience of the main sub-fields of the discipline and have acquired appropriate study skills.

Programme Outcomes

The programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, skills, qualities and other attributes in the following areas:

Knowledge and Understanding

A. Knowledge and understanding of: <ol style="list-style-type: none"><li>1. Fundamental concepts of Philosophy and of Political Theory and major texts from the Greeks to the present time.</li><li>2. The comparative analysis of government institutions, political movement and the social bases of politics.</li><li>3. The various approaches and the study of Modern International Relations.</li><li>4. Some current research in philosophy</li><li>5. A range of selected specialized subjects within the fields of Political Theory, Comparative Government and International Relations.</li></ol>

Teaching methods and strategies Lectures, seminar discussions, and individual essay feedback, prescribed and recommended reading, and the writing of essays and a dissertation. In Part 1 and Part 2 students attend both lecturers and seminars, which in Part 3 most teaching is through seminars. Part 1 modules introduce 1, 2 and 3. Part 2 modules deepen and develop students' understanding of these areas. The optional modules in 4 &amp; 5 build on the modules in 1,2 and 3. Assessment Most knowledge is tested through a combination of coursework and formal examination. Dissertations and oral contributions also contribute

Skills and other attributes

B. Intellectual skills – able to:

1. think logically about Philosophical and Political arguments and issues
2. produce and defend positions in response to critical pressure
3. organise tasks into a structured form
4. transfer appropriate knowledge from one area to another
5. react productively to the growth of knowledge

Optional:

6. plan, conduct and write an longish independent dissertation on an appropriate topic

Teaching methods and strategies

As above plus teaching focuses on the quality of argumentation and on the carefulness with which positions are thought out. These are qualities sought in the reading material and prized in the students' written work and oral presentations. Students are encouraged to link core and optional modules and also to use knowledge from modules in the dissertation.

Assessment

Guidance on student progress is given by feedback on coursework essays and on seminar presentations. The module grade is determined by the results of written unseen exams, or by coursework essays and exams.

C. Practical skills – able to:

1. gather, organise and deploy evidence, data and information from a variety of primary and secondary sources.
2. identify, investigate, analyse and formulate problems and defend solutions
3. engage in discussion of each other's responses
4. reflect on their own learning and seek and make use of feedback
5. manage their own learning self-critically.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

1 is taught through lectures and seminars.

2 and 3 are acquired through seminar discussions, written work and oral presentations.

3 and 4 are developed through more independent learning, especially the dissertation

Assessment

1 and 2 are tested formatively and summatively in examinations. 3 is assessed formatively in seminars. 4 is assessed through examination of student progress. 5 is assessed particularly through the dissertation.

D. Transferable skills – able to:

1. communicate effectively in speech and writing
2. use communication and I.T. for the retrieval and communication of information
3. work independently, demonstrating initiative, organisation and time management
4. collaborate with others to achieve common goals
5. plan their career.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

1 is embedded in all modules.

2 is demonstrated by the use of I.T. based exercises.

3 is an essential requirement for the timely and effective completion of the programme.

4 is developed through active participation in seminars.

5 is developed through the provision of Careers Management Skills in Part 2.

Assessment

1, 2 and 3 are assessed through coursework and examinations.

4 is assessed through seminar participation.

Please note - This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in the module description and in the programme handbook. The University reserves the right to modify this specification in unforeseen circumstances, or where the process of academic development and feedback from students, quality assurance processes or external sources, such as professional bodies, requires a change to be made. In such circumstances, a revised specification will be issued.
