Summary of programme aims

This is a multi-disciplinary programme which aims to provide students with subject-specific knowledge, including knowledge of a variety of different kinds of literary, cultural and historical texts from a range of periods, together with perspectives on different methods of critical analysis, and a knowledge of core developments in English and European Literature and Culture. More generally, the course also aims to foster an independent approach to formulating problems and arguments, using the close reading and analytical skills that are fundamental to both disciplines. The European Literature and Culture part of the programme aims to provide undergraduate students with subject-specific knowledge and related skills. In particular, it aims to:

- give the student an introduction to the intellectual and historical context within which the works were produced,
- develop the student's understanding of the interrelationship between the works studied and the context within which they were produced;
- develop the student's understanding of the comparative importance of national and European creative developments;
- enable the student to contextualise, to think conceptually about European creative production, and to develop an intercultural awareness.

Transferable skills

During the course of their studies at Reading, all students will be expected to enhance their academic and personal transferable skills in line with the University's Strategy for Learning and Teaching. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to develop such skills, in particular relating to communication, interpersonal skills, learning skills, self-management, use of IT and problem-solving, and will have been encouraged to further develop and enhance the full set of skills through a variety of opportunities available outside their curriculum.

In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to enhance their skills relating to literacy and communication and the ability to apply these in appropriate contexts, the ability to understand, interrogate and apply a variety of theoretical positions and weigh the importance of alternative perspectives, the ability to present sustained and persuasive written and oral arguments cogently and coherently, career management, a broad awareness of cultural difference in a European dimension, information handling, problem-solving, team working and use of information technology.

Programme content

Each Part of the degree programme comprises 120 credits. In Part 1 students are required to take 60 credits in the School of English and a minimum of 40 credits in European Literature and Culture. Part 1 students are introduced to fundamental debates about the study of literature through close analysis of selected texts from different periods and from different countries and through exploration of core issues involved in the comparative study of literatures in translation. In Parts 2 and 3, students must normally take 60 credits in both English and European Literature and Culture in each Part. However, in consultation with their programme adviser, they may choose to take up to 20 credits each year from modules elsewhere in the University. Both strands of the programme provide increased breadth of coverage, focusing on a variety of historical periods and generic traditions. Students will have the possibility of selecting specialised optional modules.

The programme which follows states which modules must be taken (the compulsory part), together with one or more lists of modules from which the student must make a selection (the optional part). Students must choose such additional modules as they wish, in consultation with their programme adviser, to make 120 credits in each Part. The number of credits in each module is shown in column after its title, and the credit requirements in English and in European Literature and Culture are indicated for each Part.

Admissions Tutor: Mrs Carolyn Lyle

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers, and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@il) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and the Student Services Centre. The Student Services Centre is housed in the Carrington Building and includes the Careers Advisory Service, the Disability Advisory Service, Accommodation Advisory Team, Student Financial Support, Counselling and Study Advisors. Student Services has a Helpdesk available for enquiries made in person or online, or by calling the central enquiry number on (0118) 378 5555. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions on everything from accommodation to finance. The Carrington Building is open between 8:30 and 17:30 Monday to Thursday (17:00 Friday and during vacation periods). Further information can be found in the Student Diary (given to students at enrolment) or on the Student website.

The Department of English and American Literature also offers students specific help to improve and develop their essay writing skills through the Royal Literary Fund Fellowship scheme, which provides a resident professional writer whose role is to advise students individually, from first-year to postgraduate level, on raising the level of their academic writing.

Students in the Department of English and American Literature and the School of Modern Languages receive a Handbook which gives details of the Programme, guidance on study skills such as note-taking and essay writing, and information about staff, facilities, and sources of specialized help within the University, such as the Study Skills Advisor and the Counselling Service. The programmes are designed to give students extensive teaching support in Part 1 leading to more independent work in Part 3. Academic feedback and guidance is given through one-to-one essay tutorials, and academic and personal support is provided through the tutor system and the University's Personal and Academic Record (PAR) Scheme. Dissertation workshops prepare students for the Part 3 dissertation which is individually supervised. The Geoffrey Matthews Collection, housed in the Department of English and American Literature, provides books, xeroxed materials, cassettes and an extensive collection of videos for loan to students. A video-viewing suite is available within the Faculty. The Library is well-stocked with printed materials as well as essential electronic databases on-line and on CD ROM, such as the OED, the MLA Bibliography, and JSTOR. Specialist subject librarians are available to give students advice and guidance to library resources.

Career prospects

In recent years students who have gained an English and European Literature degree from Reading have gone into a wide variety of jobs, including teaching, publishing, journalism, the media, management, administration, and public relations. An literature degree provides graduates with a range of communication and analytical skills that will serve them in good stead in the marketplace. A number of graduates each year go on to further academic study and research. In addition to the help provided by the University Careers Advisory Service, the Department of English and American Literature has a Careers Tutor available to advise students in English on researching and planning their career choices.
