Summary of programme aims

This is a multi-disciplinary programme which aims to provide students with subject-specific knowledge, including knowledge of a variety of different kinds of literary, cultural and historical texts from a range of periods, together with perspectives on different methods of critical analysis and a high level of competence in the reception and production of spoken and written Italian. More generally, the course also aims to foster an independent approach to formulating problems and arguments, using the close reading and analytical skills that are fundamental to both disciplines.

Transferable skills

During the course of their studies at Reading, all students will be expected to enhance their academic and personal transferable skills in line with the University's Strategy for Learning and Teaching. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to develop such skills, in particular relating to communication, interpersonal skills, learning skills, numeracy, self-management, use of IT and problem-solving and will have been encouraged to further develop and enhance the full set of skills through a variety of opportunities available outside their curriculum.

In addition, students on this joint degree programme will gain experience in self-reliance, effective time management and cultural awareness; they will acquire skills in the use of library and other relevant information resources; and they will develop their ability to formulate and evaluate their own arguments and those of others.

Programme content

Each Part of the degree programme comprises 120 credits. In Part 1 students take 60 credits in the Department of English and American Literature, where they are introduced to fundamental debates about the study of literature through close analysis of selected texts from different periods. They also take a minimum of 40 credits in Italian, involving both language study and an introduction to aspects of Italian culture. In Part 2 students must normally take a minimum of 60 credits in both English and Italian. The English strand of the programme provides increased breadth of coverage, focusing on texts within a variety of historical periods and generic traditions, while in the Italian strand students continue their language studies and choose options from a range of broadly-based culture modules. The compulsory Year Abroad takes place in the third year of the degree programme. The experience of living in Italy enables students to make great strides in their linguistic skills, particularly their oral and aural ones, and allows them to extend their knowledge of the host culture by pursuing 60 credits' worth of courses at an Italian University. They also engage in independent study in preparation for the Joint Dissertation. In Part 3 students embark on more specialized work in both English and Italian, taking one further Italian language module, choosing two modules in each of English and Italian from a wide range of advanced options, and completing their Dissertation.

Part 1 (three terms)

In English (40 credits) Students choose two optional 20-credit modules, one in each term, to make a total of 40 credits. Optional modules: A complete list of options is available from the Programme Director in English and in the English Part 3 Module Supplement. Admission to optional modules will be at the discretion of the Programme Director in English.

Italian Optional modules (40 credits)

Students must choose two option modules to the value of 40 credits. A complete list of options is available from the Programme Adviser and a list of current options can be found in the relevant Departmental Handbook.

Progression requirements

To proceed from Part 1 to Part 2, a Joint Honours student must: 1. obtain an overall average of 40% over 120 credits taken in Part 1, where all the credits are at C level or above; 2. achieve a minimum of 40% in each of the compulsory modules in English and Italian; 3. and a mark of at least 30% in individual modules amounting to not less than 100 credits taken in Part 1.

To proceed from Part 2 to the Year Abroad, students must: 1. obtain a mark of 40% in their Italian Language module, 2. achieve an overall average of at least 40% across all Part 2 modules and across English Part 2 modules, 3. achieve a mark of at least 30% in individual modules amounting to not less than 100 credits taken in Part 2.

To proceed from the Year Abroad to Part 3, students must satisfy the examiners that they have successfully completed an approved programme of study at an Italian university. To proceed from the Year Abroad to Part 3, students must satisfy the examiners that they have successfully completed an approved programme of study at an Italian university

In the final assessment, the weighting ratio between modules taken during Year 2, modules taken during the Year Abroad, and modules taken during Part 3 is 2: 3: 4. Thus modules taken during Year 2 count for 22.2% of the total credit weighting, modules taken during the Year Abroad count for 33.3% of the total credit weighting, and modules taken during Part 3 count for 44.4% of the total credit weighting.

Summary of teaching and assessment

In English teaching is mainly by lectures and seminars, with individual essay feedback. Assessment is by a combination of coursework and formal examinations.

Italian language modules are taught in small groups; other modules typically involve a mixture of lectures, small-group seminars and essay tutorials. Over the programme as a whole, most modules are assessed by a mixture of coursework and formal examination. The 60 credits gained in the third year from 'Courses taken abroad' will derive from marks obtained in examinations set by the host university in Italy. The Italian oral written and textual skills will be examined in Part 3.

Admission requirements

No previous qualification in Italian is required. Entrants to this Joint Degree programme are normally required to have obtained:

UCAS Tariff: either 280 points from three A2s, including 100 points (grade B) in English Literature or English Language and Literature; or 320 points from 3 A2s + up to two AS, including 100 points (grade B) in English Literature or English Language and Literature

International Baccalaureate: 31 points with at least 6 for Higher level English Literature

Scottish/Irish Highers: ABBBB

GCSE/O: Grade C in English Language preferred.

All applications are considered on their individual merits. Mature candidates will usually be expected to have a B (100 points) at A level English, but consideration is also given to applicants with other qualifications and experience.

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers, and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@il) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and the Student Services Directorate. The Student Services Directorate is housed in the Carrington Building and includes the Careers Advisory Service, the Disability Advisory Service, Accommodation Advisory Team, Student Financial Support, Counselling and Study Advisors. Student Services has a Helpdesk available for enquiries made in person or online (www.risisweb.reading.ac.uk), or by calling the central enquiry number on (0118) 378 5555. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions on everything from accommodation to finance. The Carrington Building is open between 8:30 and 17:30 Monday to Thursday (17:00 Friday and during vacation periods). Further information can be found in the Student website (www.reading.ac.uk/student).

The Department of English and American Literature offers students specific help to improve and develop their essay writing skills through the Royal Literary Fund Fellowship scheme, which provides a resident professional writer whose role is to advise students individually, from first-year to postgraduate level, on raising the level of their academic writing.

Within both English and Italian students receive Handbooks which gives details of course content, guidance on study skills such as note-taking and essay writing, and information about staff, facilities, and sources of specialized help within the University. The English programme is designed to give students extensive teaching support in Part 1, developing towards more independent work in Part 4. Academic feedback and guidance is given through one-to-one essay tutorials, and academic and personal support is provided through the tutor system and the University's Personal and Academic Record (PAR) Scheme. The Geoffrey Matthews Collection, housed in the Department of English and American Literature, provides books, xeroxed materials, cassettes and an expanding collection of videos for loan to students. The University Language Centre (ULC) contains a range of audio and audio-visual materials to promote self-study in languages, together with facilities for watching Italian television by satellite. A video-viewing suite is available within the Faculty to support cinema studies. The Italian departmental library houses a range of reference works available for students' use, and offers a congenial study space.

Career prospects

In recent years students who have gained a degree on this programme have gone into a wide variety of jobs, including teaching, publishing, journalism, the media, management, administration, and public relations. Joint degrees involving a language, like degrees in other arts subjects, can also lead to careers marketing and the business world, including the travel industry, where students' knowledge of Italian can be an important asset. Some graduates also use their linguistic skills in teaching, including teaching English as a Foreign Language abroad. A Reading degree in English and Italian provides graduates with a range of communication and analytical skills that will serve them in good stead in the marketplace. Graduates may also go on to further academic study and research. In addition to the help provided by the University Careers Advisory Service, the Department of English and American Literature has a Careers Tutor available to advise students in English on researching and planning their career choices.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

The Department of Italian participates in SOCRATES exchanges with the Universities of Padova, Roma III, Firenze, Siena, Pisa, Pavia, Genova, Napoli (Federico II), Bologna, Bergamo, and Venezia. Students spend the whole of the third year studying at one of these Universities. Further information on these universities is available on the Internet at <http://www.reading.ac.uk/italian>

Programme Outcomes

Knowledge and Understanding

A. Knowledge and understanding of:

1. Literary texts in English from selected periods between the Middle Ages and the present day
2. A range of kinds of texts including fiction, poetry and drama
3. Methods of critical textual analysis
4. Ways in which social, cultural and historical issues relate to texts
5. A range of approaches in English studies
6. Selected special fields of English
7. A wide range of Italian vocabulary and idiom
8. Fundamental aspects and concepts of Italian grammar and syntax (and important contrasts with English)
9. Selected aspects of Italian literature, history and culture
10. Methods of approach, analysis and interpretation associated with the various disciplines covered

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

In English, knowledge and understanding are gained through formal teaching (lectures, seminar discussions, individual essay feedback), prescribed and recommended reading, and the writing of essays and a dissertation. Part 1 offers a broad introduction to 1-5. In Part 2 the understanding and skills acquired in Part 1 are developed with particular emphasis on 1, 2 and 4 through seminars, lectures and individual feedback. Part 4 introduces more specialized study, particularly in relation to 3, 5 and 6, through a choice of seminar-based modules together with supervised, independent study leading to a dissertation.

The Italian language (7-8) is taught at three distinct levels in Part 1: beginners, intermediate, advanced. Separate teaching continues in Part 2, but after the year in Italy all students follow the same course. Teaching is always in small groups, with different classes devoted to grammar, oral and aural skills, reading and writing skills, and translation. Audio-visual resources are used as appropriate, and the use of self-access facilities is encouraged. Regular non-assessed coursework is set, and considerable emphasis is placed on individual study. The Year Abroad provides experience in the use of everyday Italian and the opportunity to follow university courses at the host institution.

9-10 are taught through a combination of usually informal lectures and seminars. Students undertake independent reading on the basis of bibliographies issued for each module, and prepare seminar papers and assessed essays. The dissertation provides an opportunity for further development of independent research.

Assessment

In English Parts 1 and 2, knowledge and understanding of 1 - 5 are tested through a combination of essays and unseen written examinations. In Part 4, assessment is based on a mixture of methods, such as extended essays, essays plus unseen exams, and the dissertation. In Italian, language work (7-8) is assessed by written and oral examinations. Courses taken during the Year Abroad are also examined orally. 9 and 10 are assessed by a combination of coursework essays and examination, and in the dissertation.

Skills and other attributes

B. Intellectual skills - able to:

1. Capacity for independent analysis and research
2. Identification of problems and issues
3. The ability to read closely and critically
4. An ability to reflect on one's own positions
5. Ability to understand and evaluate different cultural traditions and environments
6. Ability to transfer appropriate knowledge and methods from one discipline within the subject to another
7. Ability to analyse linguistic performance and phenomena
8. Ability to plan and conduct an extended analysis of a chosen topic.

C. Practical skills - able to:

In English:

1. The ability to criticize and formulate interpretations of texts
2. An ability to engage in critical argument using relevant theoretical approaches
3. An awareness of the rhetorical resources of the English language
4. Bibliographical and research skills
5. A knowledge of appropriate conventions in the presentation of written work
6. An ability to relate the study of English to cultural and social issues

In Italian, the ability to:

- 7 Communicate in Italian at high levels of

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Intellectual skills are acquired through independent reading (1), through close guided study of texts (3), seminar preparation and discussion (1-3, 5-6), and essay writing and feedback through tutorials (1-6); through language classes (7) and the completion of the dissertation (8)

Assessment

1 - 3 and 5 are assessed both formatively in coursework essays, and summatively in essays and unseen exams, 6 is assessed specifically in certain specialised options and indirectly in most parts of the programme 1- 5 are assessed formatively through seminar discussion and essay feedback and tutorials. 7 is assessed in certain language examinations, 8 by means of the dissertation and the extended essay which forms part of some modules.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

1 - 3 and 6 are developed in seminars, essays and essay tutorials. 4 and 5 are developed through essays, essay feedback and dissertation guidance and supervision.

In Italian, skills 7-8 are taught and encouraged through language classes and the requirement for independent reading, and are enhanced by academic and everyday experience during the year abroad. Skills 9 and 10 are developed through regular seminars, essay assignments and feedback; skills 10 and 11 through the preparation for and presentation of the dissertation; skill 12 through the year abroad and the preparation provided during Part 2 of the programme.

proficiency in speech and writing

8 Understand a variety of types of textual material in Italian

9 Present arguments orally and in writing in a coherent and structured way

10 Locate, sift and select material from a variety of sources

11 Report in writing on the results of an extended piece of independent work

12 Organize one's day-to-day life and study during a period of residence abroad.

D. Transferable skills - able to:

1. Fluency in written and oral communication

2. The ability to formulate and present arguments with appropriate use of evidence

3. Assessing the merits of competing approaches

4. The ability to translate subject-specific knowledge and skills into other environments

5. The ability to find and use relevant information resources

6. Time-management skills

7. A creative approach to problem-solving

8. Group and interpersonal skills

9. An ability to work independently, to self-evaluate and self-reflect

10. Use of information technology, especially word-processing

11. Ability to take account of different linguistic and cultural environments

12. Plan and evaluate career possibilities.

Assessment

All the subject-specific practical skills are assessed through formative and summative essays. 1 - 3 and 6 are also tested in unseen examinations.

In Italian, skills 7-10 are assessed in examinations and in regular coursework; 10 and 11 are assessed through the dissertation; 12 is a progression requirement, although only the academic components are assessed.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Transferable skills are developed through seminar discussions(1, 2, 3, 4, 7 and 9), through seminar presentations, essay writing, tutorial feedback and unseen examinations (1 - 9). 4 and 7 particularly are developed through requiring students to draw on acquired knowledge and skills when analyzing new material in essays and unseen examinations. 5 and 10 are developed through use of the library and other sources of information, for seminar preparation, essay writing and research for the dissertation. Time-management skills (6) are enhanced through regular submission of language exercises and strict deadlines for assessed work. Independent work and self-reliance (9) are particularly important in the year abroad, including the dissertation, and the year abroad makes a vital contribution to 11, which informs the whole programme. We require that all assessed essays are word-processed (10). Career management (12) is taught in an element incorporated in the preparation for and supervision of the year abroad.

Assessment

1 - 7 and 9 are formatively assessed through coursework essays and seminar presentations, and summatively assessed through essays, unseen examinations (including examinations in Italy), and the dissertation. 9 is encouraged through essay feedback and essay tutorials. 8 is encouraged through seminars and in tutorials. 11 is not directly assessed but informs a student's work throughout the programme, especially in the third and final years.

Please note - This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in the module description and in the programme handbook. The University reserves the right to modify this specification in unforeseen circumstances, or where the process of academic development and feedback from students, quality assurance process or external sources, such as professional bodies, requires a change to be made. In such circumstances, a revised specification will be issued.
