

MA (Res)/Postgraduate Diploma/Postgraduate Certificate in English
For students entering in 2009

Awarding Institution:	The University of Reading
Teaching Institution:	The University of Reading
Faculty of Arts and Humanities
Programme length:	12 months FT/24PT
Date of specification:	July 2009
Programme Director:	Professor Peter Stoneley
Board of Studies:	Dept. of English & American Literature
Accreditation:

Summary of programme aims

This degree provides an in-depth investigation into modern English studies. Working with such unique and important resources as the Beckett Archive, the programme will introduce students to methods of research with regard to bibliography, manuscripts, databases, and editing. In the initial stages, the MA will also require students to question and think critically about the organisation of English studies, and especially about the social and chronological categories that are often invoked to place and to explain literature. Following on from this questioning of traditional paradigms in the compulsory modules, the range of the optional modules again invites students to consider the comparative and transnational dynamics of modern English studies. The programme grants students a wide choice of specialised modules within sub-areas of strong current research interest, from the early modern to the contemporary; it enables detailed study of particular authors and canons, from Shakespeare to Beckett, from nation to diaspora.

Transferable skills

Students on this MA will:

- 1) be able to analyse and think critically about complex texts and issues
- 2) be able to assess the legitimacy of an argument in its own terms, and to formulate, both in written and in oral form, complex arguments of their own with an awareness of the relevance and consequences of their own formulations and claims
- 3) acquire an extensive understanding of the methods, resources, and skills necessary for them to develop their knowledge and understanding further
- 4) be able to communicate clearly to others their own thinking and the reasons for it

Programme content

MA students will complete 180 credits.

Mod Code	Module Title	Credits	Level
COMPULSORY MODULES
ENMMT	Materiality and Textuality	30	7
ENMESG	Modern English Studies - G	20	7
ENMMDE	20,000-word dissertation	90	7
OPTIONAL MODULES
ENMUS	The Unruly Stage in Shakespearean England	20	7
ENMWR	Early Modern Writing and Reading	20	7
ENMIO	Identity and Otherness in the Early Modern Period	20	7
ENMVNE	Nation and Empire in the Nineteenth Century	20	7
ENMSSC	Science Sex and Crime	20	7
ENMBEC	Beckett	20	7
ENMCAF	Contemporary American Fiction	20	7
ENMDIA	Diasporas of the Mind	20	7
ENMTCC	Caribbean Narratives	20	7
ENMCP	Contemporary Poetry	20	7
ENMWRP	Writing, Revision and publishing	20	7

Not all optional modules will be available in any given year, and entry to the modules is at the discretion of the programme director.

Part-time/Modular arrangements

Part-time and modular students are required to take the module on Modern English Studies in their first term. They must complete four modules before beginning their dissertation.

Progression requirements

N/A

Summary of teaching and assessment

Students are taught in plenary seminar sessions, and also in smaller guided study groups, by the tutors of English and research methods in The Department of English and American Literature. Active participation by students is expected and encouraged at every stage. Classes in research methods and resources are incorporated into the “Materiality and Textuality” module. The dissertation is supported by a series of seminars on aspects of dissertation writing, followed by one-to-one supervision.

The University’s taught postgraduate marks classification is as follows:

Mark	Interpretation
70 – 100%	Distinction
60 – 69%	Merit
50 – 59%	Good standard (Pass)
Failing categories:
40 – 49%	Work below threshold standard
0 – 39%	Unsatisfactory Work

A Certificate may be awarded on the completion of at least 60 credits (i.e. the first three modules). A Diploma may be awarded on completion of at least 120 credits to be made up of 90 credits of coursework plus the completion of an extra 30 credits in the form of essays.

For Masters Degrees

To pass the MA students must gain an average mark of 50 or more overall including a mark of 50 or more for the dissertation and have no mark below 40 in modules ENMMT and ENMESG. In addition the total credit value of all modules marked below 40 must not exceed 30 credits and for all modules marked below 50 must not exceed 55 credits.*

Students who gain an average mark of 70 or more overall including a mark of 60 or more for the dissertation and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for a Distinction. Those gaining an average mark of 60 or more overall including a mark of 50 or more for the dissertation and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for a Merit.

For PG Diplomas

To pass the Postgraduate Diploma students must gain an average mark of 50 or more and have no mark below 40 in modules ENMMT and ENMESG. In addition the total credit value of all modules marked below 40 must not exceed 30 credits and for all modules marked below 50 must not exceed 55 credits.*

Students who gain an average mark of 70 or more and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for the award of a Distinction. Those gaining an average mark of 60 or more and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for a Merit.

For PG Certificate

To pass the Postgraduate Certificate students must gain an average mark of 50 or more and have no mark below 40 in modules ENMMT and ENMESG. In addition the total credit value of all modules marked below 40 must not exceed 10 credits.*

*The provision to permit a candidate to be passed overall with a profile containing marks below 40 is made subject to the condition that there is evidence that the candidate applied himself or herself to the work of those modules with reasonable diligence and has not been absent from the examination without reasonable cause.

Reassessment arrangements are that:

- (a) All modules other than the dissertation to be re-assessed in September.
- (b) Students undergoing re-assessment to be allowed one month's extension to submit their dissertation.
- (c) A failed dissertation to be re-submitted within one year from the original submission date.

Admission requirements

Entrants to this programme are normally required to have obtained:

At least a 2.i or its equivalent in English or in a discipline in which the study of literature has formed the substantial part.

Admissions Tutor: Professor Peter Stoneley

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@IL) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme.

Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and the Student Services Centre. The Student Services Centre is housed in the Carrington Building and includes the Careers Advisory Service, the Disability Advisory Service, Accommodation Advisory Team, Student Financial Support, Counselling and Study Advisors. Student Services has a Helpdesk available for enquiries made in person or online (www.risisweb.reading.ac.uk), or by calling the central enquiry number on (0118) 378 5555. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions on everything from accommodation to finance. The Carrington Building is open between 8:30 and 17:30 Monday to Thursday (17:00 Friday and during vacation periods). Further information can be found in the Student Diary (given to students at enrolment) or on the Student website (www.reading.ac.uk/student).

The Library houses several unique collections of archival resources which relate to English studies. These include the Beckett Collection, Records of British Publishing and Printing, and Authors' Papers (Various).

A specific introduction to the use of the University Library will be provided. The University Library has substantial holdings in modern literature, and has extensive collections which relate to modern literature. There are also good resources in critical and cultural theory. In addition, the Bodleian Library and the British Library are within easy reach. The University Library also has a strong range of digital research resources, including the MLA Bibliography, and the Dictionary of National Biography.

The Department runs regular research seminars, and MA students are strongly encouraged to take part in these. All students on the programme will be assigned a member of staff as a Personal Tutor. They will be represented on the Staff-Student Liaison Committee, and they will receive full printed information on the MA and the Department, in the form of a comprehensive handbook, on arrival.

Career prospects

The MA will provide excellent preparation for PhD research in terms of research skills and methods, and in terms of the emphasis on critical and analytical thinking and the examination and construction of argument. The ability to understand and work with complex material in detail has also supported students entering into, or returning to, employment in other fields. Those who wish to become, or who already are, teachers of English or the Humanities will find their specialist knowledge of modern literature greatly enhanced, and their awareness of approaches and analytical techniques sharpened and developed. Skills of research presentation, self-reflection and presentation, will serve graduates well in a range of employment outside the classroom.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

These are not applicable to this course.

Educational aims of the programme

The MA in English aims to produce students who have good knowledge of literature in English; who have an understanding of the contexts of that literature, and who have the skills to embark on further and more specialised research in this area of study (and, in particular, to prepare students for PhD research in English literature). The programme aims, in particular, to familiarise students with some of the areas of most intense present-day critical debate. In the course of study, students will also be given the opportunity to examine different genres and forms, most obviously fiction, non-fictional prose, drama, and poetry. The compulsory modules offer methodological and theoretical approaches to English literature. The optional modules reflect current interests and strengths within the Department, but there is also a strong element of cohesion, in that the optional modules approach modernity as refracted through gender and sexuality, and in relation to race, nation, and diaspora. In these various ways, the programme will work to develop students' ability to think critically and analytically about a wide but related range of textual and contextual material.

Programme Outcomes

Knowledge and Understanding

A. Knowledge and understanding of:	Teaching/learning methods and strategies
1) Literature in English. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i. The forms and modes of cultural production and consumption. ii. Concepts, theories, and histories of English studies. iii. Nationhood, the cosmopolis, ethnicity, and modernity. iv. The development of discourses of gender and sexuality, and their impact on notions of the Victorian and the Modern. v. How these various issues have been developed and complicated in contemporary writing, under the terms of postmodernism, postethnicity, and hybridity. 2) A range of the literary, theoretical, and historicist discourses that had an impact on the understanding and organisation of English studies. 3) Research methods and resources, including bibliography, palaeography, editorial practices, and databases.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1) There will be two foundational, compulsory modules. Full-time students will take two modules in each of the first two terms. 2) On the foundational modules, there will be one two-hour seminar per module, per week, for full-time students. Material for seminars will be set in advance and discussed in small groups with the seminar leader. 3) On the optional, guided study modules, there will be one two-hour seminar per week for full-time students. Material for discussion will be arrived at on a week-by-week, consultative basis. 4) Seminars will be devoted to acquainting students with the range of archival, print, and electronic resources. Some seminars will take place in the University Library, using material from the special collections. Special seminars for the planning of the dissertation will be provided at the beginning of the writing period. Each student will arrive at his/her dissertation topic in advance of the writing, and in consultation with staff. Regular supervisions will be given during the summer term. Assessment Assessment on the “Materiality and Textuality” module take the form of three bibliographical exercises. All of the other three modules taken will be worth 20 credits each, and will be assessed by long essay (5000 words), to be submitted after the course has finished. The dissertation may be up to 20, 000 words, and must be submitted by 20 September.

Skills and other attributes

B. Intellectual skills – able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none">1) Think critically and analytically about texts and contexts.2) Engage with a range of approaches and ideas, including the various ideas and perspectives of staff and students.3) Evaluate and participate in their own learning process, and to develop an independence in learning and argument in written work.	Teaching/learning methods and strategies <ol style="list-style-type: none">1) On all modules, students are encouraged to look at texts within a number of specific contexts, and to use texts and contexts to interrogate one another.2) In seminar, students are expected and encouraged to debate with one another and with tutors, and to raise questions and problems.3) One-to-one essay supervisions will be used to ensure that students take responsibility for the formulation, research, and presentation of their own ideas and arguments. Assessment Students must demonstrate the development of these skills in their coursework essays, and in their 20, 000-word dissertation.
C. Practical skills – able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none">1) Use research facilities such as libraries and the internet, appropriately and efficiently.2) Use the special resources of the University Library, and apply bibliographical methods to research.3) Use information technology, such as computer software, where it is useful.	Teaching/learning methods and strategies <ol style="list-style-type: none">1) Library induction, including the use of electronic resources; raising awareness of the range of primary resources in Reading and beyond (using such resources as the Location Register of Literary Manuscripts).2) Training in bibliographical method and use of print resources.3) Attendance of University IT modules where appropriate; learning on modules to assess and differentiate the validity of internet text as information and/or argument, and learning to use these effectively in criticism and scholarship. Assessment There will be an assessed bibliographical component in the first term.

D. Transferable skills – able to:

- 1) Think about present-day texts and issues in the light of their literary and cultural antecedents.
- 2) Analyse and think critically about complex texts and issues.
- 3) Assess the legitimacy of an argument in its own terms, and to formulate, both in written and oral form, complex arguments of their own, with an awareness of the relevance and consequences of their own formulations and claims.
- 4) Communicate clearly to others their own thinking and the reasons behind it, and work with others in groups, acknowledging and comprehending a variety of arguments.
- 5) Promote awareness of ways and resources for the development of further knowledge and understanding, as part of an ability to learn independently.
- 6) Take responsibility for their own work and to meet deadlines.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

- 1) The structure of the course, and of each module, is designed and will be taught to make explicit the emergence of many of the chronological ideas that have informed the critical institution of English studies.
- 2) Discuss and analyse a wide variety of texts in a range of historical and intellectual contexts.
- 3) Engage closely with these texts to develop critical and analytical skills.
- 4) Participate actively in seminar discussion, and prepare and deliver oral presentations to their peers.
- 5) A familiarity with library and IT resources is developed through the course both in terms of discussion and information on where material is available, and how such material should be approached and evaluated.
- 6) Students will be encouraged to develop independent and disciplined thought in seminar and written work.

Assessment

All these transferable skills are assessed in the writing of the essays and the dissertation.

Please note - This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in the module description and in the programme handbook. The University reserves the right to modify this specification in unforeseen circumstances, or where the process of academic development and feedback from students, quality assurance processes or external sources, such as professional bodies, requires a change to be made. In such circumstances, a revised specification will be issued.