

MA (Res) Legal History

For students entering in 2009

Awarding Institution:	The University of Reading
Teaching Institution:	The University of Reading
	Faculty of Social Sciences
Programme length:	12 months full-time; 24 months part-time
Date of specification:	June 2008
Programme Director:	Dr Charlotte Smith
Board of Studies:	School of Law
Accreditation:	Not applicable

Summary of programme aims

The MA (Res) Legal History is an interdisciplinary programme that equips graduates with a sophisticated understanding of legal and historical approaches to social, cultural and political phenomena, advanced skills in archival research, and the ability to undertake high level analysis of law and legal issues. Its aim is to provide students with the research skills needed to undertake postgraduate research in the field of legal history.

The MA (Res) Legal History seeks to enable students to:

- Develop their knowledge and understanding of legal and historical approaches to the study of social, cultural and political issues;
- Develop advanced skills in archival research and a sound understanding of the associated methodological issues;
- Develop and enhance their knowledge and understanding of their chosen area of legal history and their ability to engage in higher level analysis of law and legal issues;
- Prepare for doctoral research in legal history or to undertake a professional career while contributing to academic research in legal history.

Transferable skills

The programme provides a range of transferable skills, including the ability to construct and manage a research project; the ability effectively to analyse and evaluate legal and historical sources, information and data; the ability coherently to communicate in written and oral form the results of research and the rationale and process behind them; and, generally, the ability to develop high level skills of critical and independent thought and analysis.

Programme content

The following modules are compulsory for all students.

Mod Code	Module Title	Credits	Level
LWMHRM	Research Methods in Legal History	20	7
LWMHAR	Archival Research	20	7
LWMHDI	Research Dissertation	90	7
LWMHRS	Research Seminar Presentation	10	7

Students must also complete 40 credits from the following list of modules.

Mod Code	Module Title	Credits	Level
LWMHMA	History and Management of an Archive	20	7
LWMHCT	Critical Thinkers	20	7
LWMHSP	Sourcing the Past	20	7
LWMHAI	Archival Internship	40	7
LW3HEL	History of English Law †	20	6
LW3CJ	Criminal Justice †	20	6

† This module may only be taken with the permission of the Programme Director.

Students may take alternative unlisted modules offered by any School or Department in the University, with permission of the programme director. Generally, permission to take unlisted modules will only be granted in exceptional circumstances. Note that, as with all modules, any pre-requisites or co-requisites will also need to be satisfied and that it may also be the case that students also require approval from the department which runs the module in question.

Part-time/Modular arrangements

The programme may be undertaken over two years on a part-time basis. Selection of modules between the two years will be agreed at the commencement of the programme. It is expected that students will normally complete at least 60 credits in year one, and that this will include the modules in Research Methods in Legal History and Archival Research. It is also expected that students will normally commence their dissertation in year one. Modules will be assessed in the year in which they are taken.

Progression requirements

A Certificate may be awarded on the completion of at least 60 credits. Forty of the credits must relate to the compulsory modules in Research Methods in Legal History and Archival Research.

A Diploma may be awarded on completion of at least 120 credits to be made up of the compulsory module in Archival Research, the Dissertation and the Research Seminar Presentation.

Summary of teaching and assessment

The programme is structured around the core requirement that students should undertake detailed research in some aspect of legal history. Teaching and assessment will primarily take the form of individually supervised guided research and writing, with each candidate's programme tailored to best reflect their needs, interests and goals

As part of the compulsory module in Archival Research all students will be required to attend an intensive week long course in archives and libraries for historical research, which will be hosted by the Institute of Historical Research. The course will be held at the IHR itself in London during the winter term. The Law School will cover the cost of fees for this course. In addition, events and evening seminars will be held at Reading Law School throughout the academic year, giving students a chance to develop their research skills and explore new research avenues with experts in their respective fields. Students will be expected to attend four such events during their course in order to fulfil the assessment requirements for the compulsory module in Research Methods in Legal History.

The Research Seminar Presentation module will be provided by staff with relevant expertise in the subject area and the Research Seminar Presentation Module Convenor.

Students are also able to participate in the seminars which form part of the undergraduate module in History of English Law and may also attend the School of Law's foundational course of lectures for Masters students, The Foundations of English Law. Students may attend other module classes and training at the Graduate School as appropriate to their needs and interests and at the discretion of the Programme Director and relevant Module Convenor.

Where a student has not studied law at undergraduate level they may be advised to attend additional relevant seminars offered on the undergraduate programme in order to compensate for any gaps in subject knowledge. Students will receive no credit for attendance at seminars in these modules.

Assessment and teaching terms of Level 7 modules are as follows:

Term/Month	Code	Module Title	Assessment	Credits	Level
1	LWMHAR	Archival Research	Attendance at IHR workshop and 10 page essay (formulated in accordance with the School of Law's Assessed Work Rules)	20	7
1-2	LWMHRM	Research Methods in Legal History	Attendance at four research seminars at Reading and submission of detailed dissertation proposal	20	7
2-3	LWMHDI	Research Dissertation	20,000 word research dissertation due in September	90	7
3	LWMHRS	Research Seminar Presentation	5 page essay (formulated in accordance with the School of Law's Assessed Work Rules)	10	7

			and 20 minute presentation in September
2	LWMHMA	The History and Management of an Archive	12 page essay (formulated in accordance with the School of Law's Assessed Work Rules)	20	7
2	LWMHCT	Critical Thinkers	12 page essay (formulated in accordance with the School of Law's Assessed Work Rules)	20	7
2	LWMHSP	Sourcing the Past	12 page essay (formulated in accordance with the School of Law's Assessed Work Rules)	20	7
2-3	LWMHAI	Archival Internship	See module description	40	7

Mark Interpretation

70 – 100% Distinction

60 – 69% Merit

50 – 59% Good standard (Pass)

Failing categories:

40 – 49% Work below threshold standard

0 – 39% Unsatisfactory Work

For Masters Degrees (180 credits)

To pass the MA (Res) students must gain an average mark of 50 or more overall including a mark of 50 or more for the dissertation and have no mark below 40 in modules Research Methods in Legal History and Archival Research. In addition the total credit value of all modules marked below 40 must not exceed 30 credits and for all modules marked below 50 must not exceed 60 credits.

Students who gain an average mark of 70 or more overall including a mark of 60 or more for the dissertation and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for a Distinction. Those gaining an average mark of 60 or more overall including a mark of 50 or more for the dissertation and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for a Merit.

For PG Diplomas (120 credits)

To pass the Postgraduate Diploma students must gain an average mark of 50 or more and have no mark below 40 in Dissertation and Archival Research Modules. In addition the total credit value of all modules marked below 40 must not exceed 30 credits and for all modules marked below 50 must not exceed 60 credits.

Students who gain an average mark of 70 or more and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for the award of a Distinction. Those gaining an average mark of 60 or more and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for a Merit.

For PG Certificates (60 credits)

To pass the Postgraduate Certificate students must gain an average mark of 50 or more and have no mark below 40 in modules Archival Research and Research Methods in Legal History. In addition the total credit value of all modules marked below 40 must not exceed 10 credits.

Admission requirements

Applicants are normally expected to have a degree in any of law, humanities or social sciences with a first or upper second class honours or equivalent. However, the School welcomes applications from those who have lower degree qualifications and/or other backgrounds. Applicants in this category would normally be expected to show the capacity to undertake advanced study in law and history, either by virtue of good performance in relevant aspects of their academic studies or work experience.

Admissions Tutor: Dr. Lawrence McNamara (l.mcnamara@reading.ac.uk)

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@IL) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme.

Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and the Student Services Centre. The Student Services Centre is housed in the Carrington Building and includes the Careers Advisory Service, the Disability Advisory Service, Accommodation Advisory Team, Student Financial Support, Counselling and Study Advisors. Student Services has a Helpdesk available for enquiries made in person or online (www.risisweb.reading.ac.uk), or by calling the central enquiry number on (0118) 378 5555. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions on everything from accommodation to finance. The Carrington Building is open between 8:30 and 17:30 Monday to Thursday (17:00 Friday and during vacation periods). Further information can be found in the Student Diary (given to students at enrolment) or on the Student website (www.reading.ac.uk/student).

All students will be issued with the Law School Guide and the School's Legal Skills Guide, which provide extensive information on resources and study skills. Students will have access to a wide range of historical and legal databases and the University Library has good holdings in history, law and legal history.

The MA (Res) Legal History is built around the school's existing strengths in legal historical research, together with expertise within the wider University in history and the history of political thought. It draws on the close links fostered between the School of Law and other academics and institutions by the Forum for Legal and Historical Research at Reading. The Forum, which seeks to promote the growth and development of research networks and communities in legal and historical research, runs a series of events each year in which students are strongly encouraged to participate and take an active role.

Career prospects

With its emphasis upon legal and historical research skills and independent research, this programme is particularly suited to those who are thinking of entering the legal profession, or who wish to pursue a PhD in history, law or related areas. Pursued as a part-time programme, it is also of great value to people who are already undertaking academic research or members of the Legal Profession, especially barristers, who wish to build their skills of legal and historical analysis with a view to contributing to the literature upon which superior courts, parliamentary bodies and law reform agencies frequently rely.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

From time to time opportunities for internship and similar placements arise and the School facilitates a number of such opportunities. MA (Res) students would be actively encouraged to apply for such opportunities, and assisted in pursuing these and other relevant opportunities.

Educational aims of the programme

The MA (Res) Legal History is an interdisciplinary programme that seeks to facilitate graduates in developing a deep understanding of legal and historical approaches to social, cultural and political phenomena, advanced skills in archival research. It aims to enable students to undertake advanced analysis of law and legal issues, and to provide them with the research skills needed to undertake higher level research in the field of legal history as a preparation for doctoral study or further academic or professional development.

Programme Outcomes

The programme gives students opportunities to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, skills, qualities and attributes in the following areas:

Knowledge and Understanding

A. Knowledge and understanding of: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• A comprehensive, systematic and accurate knowledge and understanding of selected aspects of legal history through writing a dissertation;• A comprehensive and critical awareness of the various sources and materials used in legal historical research and the methodology issues which arise in the use of them;• A sound understanding of the legal and ethical issues which may arise in the course of legal historical research.	Teaching/learning methods and strategies <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Individual supervision of essays and dissertation• Research for module essays and assignments• Participation in IHR workshops• Participation in events and seminars held at the University of Reading Assessment <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Essays• Research Seminar Presentation• Dissertation Proposal• Dissertation
---	--

Skills and other attributes

B. Intellectual skills – able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Interpret and utilise primary and secondary sources and to recognise and evaluate methodological issues which arise in their selection and use;• Adopt a systematic and coherent approach to the integration and synthesis of significant quantities of information from a range of primary and secondary sources relevant to the field of legal history;• Form and communicate complex arguments in an effective and historically sensitive manner;• Communicate the results of research and arguments in a coherent and articulate way both orally and in writing;• Formulate sophisticated research questions and identify strategies for exploring them;• Think critically and independently;• Develop a critical self-awareness as a legal historical researcher.	Teaching/learning methods and strategies <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Individual supervision of essays and dissertation• Research for module essays and assignments• Participation in IHR workshops• Participation in events and seminars held at the University of Reading Assessment <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Essays• Research Seminar Presentation• Dissertation Proposal• Dissertation
---	--

C. Practical skills – able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Ability to plan and implement a primary research project while working independently;• Locate, extract and critically evaluate legal historical information from primary and secondary sources in physical and digital forms;• Select and apply appropriate methodological approaches to analyse legal historical sources;• Engage in individual and group discussion and debate on legal historical issues.	Teaching/learning methods and strategies <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Individual supervision of essays and dissertation• Research for module essays and assignments• Participation in IHR workshops• Participation in events and seminars held at the University of Reading Assessment <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Research Seminar Presentation• Dissertation Proposal• Dissertation
---	---

D. Transferable skills – able to:

- Communicate complex ideas and information effectively in speech and writing;
- Ability to construct and manage a research project;
- Deal effectively with a range of sources and types of information in an appropriate manner;
- Demonstrate sound use of electronic resources where appropriate;
- Manage time and workloads effectively;
- Demonstrate self-direction and independence in exercising their own initiative and personal responsibility;
- Continue to develop knowledge and understanding to a high level.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

All of these skills are essential for successful completion of the programme and will be developed through:

- Individual supervision of essays and dissertation
- Research for module essays and assignments
- Participation in IHR workshops
- Participation in events and seminars held at the University of Reading

Assessment

- Essays
- Research Seminar Presentation
- Dissertation Proposal
- Dissertation

Please note - This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in the module description and in the programme handbook. The University reserves the right to modify this specification in unforeseen circumstances, or where the process of academic development and feedback from students, quality assurance processes or external sources, such as professional bodies, requires a change to be made. In such circumstances, a revised specification will be issued.