Transferable skills

During the course of their studies at Reading, all students will be expected to enhance their academic and personal transferable skills in line with the University's Strategy for Learning and Teaching. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to develop such skills, in particular relating to communication, interpersonal skills, learning skills, numeracy, self-management, use of IT and problem-solving and will have been encouraged to further develop and enhance the full set of skills through a variety of opportunities available outside their curriculum.

Summary of Teaching and Assessment

Teaching is organised in modules. The delivery of material varies among modules, especially in the proportions of time allocated to lectures, and to classes and seminars. All modules involve coursework, which takes a variety of forms. Final assessment normally involves a written examination, and may also incorporate coursework marks; the maximum proportion of a final module mark allocated to coursework is 20%, other than in special cases. The conventions for classifications are included in the Programme Handbook but you should note that Part 2 modules and Year Abroad I-level modules will count for 33% of final assessment and Year Abroad H-level modules and Part 3 modules will count for 67% of final assessment.

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support is provided by a wide array of services across the University, including: the University Library, the Student Employment, Experience and Careers Centre (SEEC), In-sessional English Support Programme, the Study Advice and Mathematics Support Centre teams, IT Services and the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@il) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and advisers in the Student Services Centre. The Student Services Centre is housed in the Carrington Building and offers advice on accommodation, careers, disability, finance, and wellbeing. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions and runs workshops and seminars on a range of topics. For more information see www.reading.ac.uk/student

The School of Business provides handbooks that outline programme and module content. In addition to lecture and class time, each module lecturer has appointed office hours during which they may be consulted without prior appointment. The School of Management has a resource room with reference books and computers for student use.

Career prospects

In recent years graduates from this programme have entered a variety of careers in both the private and public sectors. Examples include jobs in banking and finance, accountancy, sales and marketing, consultancies, retailing and other service industries, the Civil Service and universities.

Graduates on this programme may apply for exemptions from relevant professional examinations of the Chartered Institute of Marketing, the Chartered Institute of Management Accountants and the Institute of Chartered Accountants of England and Wales. Students on this programme may become student members of the Institute of Management.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

The School of Management permits students to voluntarily suspend their studies at the end of Part 2 in order to complete a work placement for one session. Students who wish to take advantage of this opportunity need to ensure that they have obtained authorisation from the Director of Studies by the June Board of Study meeting in the second year of study. The placement is not assessed as part of the finals classification. The placement is seen as an opportunity for students to gain valuable work experience as part of their personal development. This may be especially useful for those who have not had any previous part-time or full-time jobs. During the year students will complete their dissertation, which may be concerned with some aspect of the work they are undertaking.

Students more frequently decide to take up a shorter work placement during the summer vacation at the end of the second year of study. In either of the above cases it is for the student to seek out an appropriate placement. Help may be provided by the Job Shop, located in the Student Advisory Service. The Employer requests are also put up on the departmental noticeboard.
