MA (Res) in English For students entering in 2010

Awarding Institution: Teaching Institution: Faculty of Arts and Humanities Programme length: Date of specification: Programme Director: Board of Studies: The University of Reading The University of Reading

12 months FT (24 months PT) July 2010 Professor Peter Stoneley Dept. of English & American Literature

Accreditation:

Summary of programme aims

This degree provides an in-depth investigation into modern English studies. Working with such unique and important resources as the Beckett Archive, the programme will introduce students to methods of research with regard to bibliography, manuscripts, databases, and editing. In the initial stages, the MA will also require students to question and think critically about the organisation of English studies, and especially about the social and chronological categories that are often invoked to place and to explain literature. Following on from this questioning of traditional paradigms in the compulsory modules, the range of the optional modules again invites students to consider the comparative and transnational dynamics of modern English studies. The programme grants students a wide choice of specialised modules within sub-areas of strong current research interest, from the early modern to the contemporary; it enables detailed study of particular authors and canons, from Shakespeare to Beckett, from nation to diaspora.

Transferable skills - Students on this MA will:

- 1) be able to analyse and think critically about complex texts and issues
- 2) be able to assess the legitimacy of an argument in its own terms, and to formulate, both in written and in oral form, complex arguments of their own with an awareness of the relevance and consequences of their own formulations and claims
- 3) acquire an extensive understanding of the methods, resources, and skills necessary for them to develop their knowledge and understanding further
- 4) be able to communicate clearly to others their own thinking and the reasons for it

Programme content

MA students will complete 180 credits.

		Credits	Level
Mod Code	Module Title
	COMPULSORY MODULES
ENMMT	Materiality and Textuality	30	7
ENMESG	Modern English Studies - G	20	7
ENMMDE	20, 000-word dissertation	90	7
	OPTIONAL MODULES
ENMUS	The Unruly Stage in Shakespearean England	20	7
ENMWR	Early Modern Writing and Reading	20	7
ENMIO	Identity and Otherness in the Early Modern Period	20	7
ENMVNE	Nation and Empire in the Nineteenth Century	20	7
ENMSSC	Science Sex and Crime		7
ENMBEC	Beckett	20	7
ENMCAF	Contemporary American Fiction	20	7
ENMDIA	Diasporas of the Mind	20	7
ENMTCC	Caribbean Narratives	20	7
ENMCP	Contemporary Poetry	20	7
ENMWRP	Writing, Revision and publishing	20	7

Not all optional modules will be available in any given year, and entry to the modules is at the discretion of the programme director.

Part-time/Modular arrangements

Part-time and modular students are required to take the module on Modern English Studies in their first term. They must complete four modules before beginning their dissertation.

Progression requirements

N/A

Summary of teaching and assessment

Students are taught in plenary seminar sessions, and also in smaller guided study groups, by the tutors of English and research methods in The Department of English and American Literature. Active participation by students is expected and encouraged at every stage. Classes in research methods and resources are incorporated into the "Materiality and Textuality" module. The dissertation is supported by a series of seminars on aspects of dissertation writing, followed by one-to-one supervision.

The University's taught postgraduate marks classification is as follows:

Mark	Interpretation
70 - 100%	Distinction
60 - 69%	Merit
50 - 59%	Good standard (Pass)

Failing categories:

40-49%	Work below threshold standard
0-39%	Unsatisfactory Work

A Certificate may be awarded on the completion of at least 60 credits (i.e. the first three modules). A Diploma may be awarded on completion of at least 120 credits to be made up of 90 credits of coursework plus the completion of an extra 30 credits in the form of essays.

For Masters Degrees

To pass the MA students must gain an average mark of 50 or more overall including a mark of 50 or more for the dissertation and have no mark below 40 in modules ENMMT and ENMESG. In addition the total credit value of all modules marked below 40 must not exceed 30 credits and for all modules marked below 50 must not exceed 55 credits.

Students who gain an average mark of 70 or more overall including a mark of 60 or more for the dissertation and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for a Distinction. Those gaining an average mark of 60 or more overall including a mark of 50 or more for the dissertation and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for a Merit.

For PG Diplomas

To pass the Postgraduate Diploma students must gain an average mark of 50 or more and have no mark below 40 in modules ENMMT and ENMESG. In addition the total credit value of all modules marked below 40 must not exceed 30 credits and for all modules marked below 50 must not exceed 55 credits.

Students who gain an average mark of 70 or more and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for the award of a Distinction. Those gaining an average mark of 60 or more and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for a Merit.

For PG Certificate

To pass the Postgraduate Certificate students must gain an average mark of 50 or more and have no mark below 40 in modules ENMMT and ENMESG. In addition the total credit value of all modules marked below 40 must not exceed 10 credits.

Reassessment arrangements are that:

- (a) All modules other than the dissertation to be re-assessed in September.
- (b) Students undergoing re-assessment to be allowed one month's extension to submit their dissertation.
- (c) A failed dissertation to be re-submitted within one year from the original submission date.

Admission requirements

Entrants to this programme are normally required to have obtained:

At least a 2.i or its equivalent in English or in a discipline in which the study of literature has formed the substantial part.

Admissions Tutor: Professor Peter Stoneley

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers, and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@il) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme.

Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and the Student Services Directorate. The Student Services Directorate is housed in the Carrington Building and includes the Careers Advisory Service, the Disability Advisory Service, Accommodation Advisory Team, Student Financial Support, Counselling and Study Advisors. Student Services has a Helpdesk available for enquiries made in person or online (www.risisweb.reading.ac.uk), or by calling the central enquiry number on (0118) 378 5555. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions on everything from accommodation to finance. The Carrington Building is open between 8:30 and 17:30 Monday to Thursday (17:00 Friday and during vacation periods). Further information can be found in the Student website (www.reading.ac.uk/student).

A specific introduction to the use of the University Library will be provided. The University Library has substantial holdings in modern literature, and has extensive collections which relate to modern literature. There are also good resources in critical and cultural theory. In addition, the Bodleian Library and the British Library are within easy reach. The University Library also has a strong range of digital research resources, including the MLA Bibliography, and the Dictionary of National Biography.

The Department runs regular research seminars, and MA students are strongly encouraged to take part in these. All students on the programme will be assigned a member of staff as a Personal Tutor. They will be represented on the Staff-Student Liaison Committee, and they will receive full printed information on the MA and the Department, in the form of a comprehensive handbook, on arrival.

Career prospects

The MA will provide excellent preparation for PhD research in terms of research skills and methods, and in terms of the emphasis on critical and analytical thinking and the examination and construction of argument. The ability to understand and work with complex material in detail has also supported students entering into, or returning to, employment in other fields. Those who wish to become, or who already are, teachers of English or the Humanities will find their specialist knowledge of modern literature greatly enhanced, and their awareness of approaches and analytical techniques sharpened and developed. Skills of research presentation, self-reflection and presentation, will serve graduates well in a range of employment outside the classroom.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

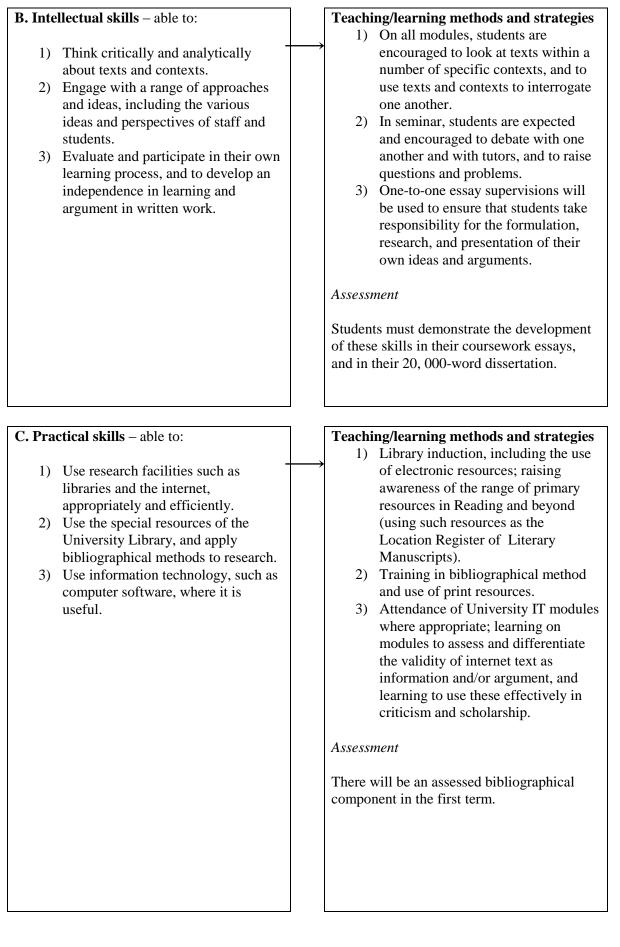

These are not applicable to this course.

Educational aims of the programme

The MA in English aims to produce students who have good knowledge of literature in English; who have an understanding of the contexts of that literature, and who have the skills to embark on further and more specialised research in this area of study (and, in particular, to prepare students for PhD research in English literature). The programme aims, in particular, to familiarise students with some of the areas of most intense present-day critical debate. In the course of study, students will also be given the opportunity to examine different genres and forms, most obviously fiction, non-fictional prose, drama, and poetry. The compulsory modules offer methodological and theoretical approaches to English literature. The optional modules reflect current interests and strengths within the Department, but there is also a strong element of cohesion, in that the optional modules approach modernity as refracted through gender and sexuality, and in relation to race, nation, and diaspora. In these various ways, the programme will work to develop students' ability to think critically and analytically about a wide but related range of textual and contextual material.

Knowledge and Understanding
A. Knowledge and understanding of:	Teaching/learning methods and strategies
		1) There will be two foundational,
1) Literature in English.		compulsory modules. Full-time
i. The forms and modes of cultural		students will take two modules in production and consumption.		each of the first two terms.
ii. Concepts, theories, and histories		2) On the foundational modules, there of English studies.		will be one two-hour seminar per
iii. Nationhood, the cosmopolis,		module, per week, for full-time ethnicity, and modernity.	\rightarrow	students. Material for seminars will
iv. The development of discourses		be set in advance and discussed in of gender and sexuality, and		small groups with the seminar their impact on notions of the		leader.
Victorian and the Modern.		3) On the optional, guided study
v. How these various issues have		modules, there will be one two-hour been developed and complicated		seminar per week for full-time in contemporary writing, under		students. Material for discussion the terms of postmodernism,		will be arrived at on a week-bypostethnicity, and hybridity.		week, consultative basis.
2) A range of the literary, theoretical, and		4) Seminars will be devoted to historicist discourses that had an impact on		acquainting students with the range
the understanding and organisation of		of archival, print, and electronic English studies.		resources. Some seminars will take
3) Research methods and resources,		place in the University Library, including bibliography, palaeography,		using material from the special editorial practices, and databases.		collections. Special seminars for the planning of the dissertation will be provided at the beginning of the writing period. Each student will arrive at his/her dissertation topic in advance of the writing, and in consultation with staff. Regular supervisions will be given during the summer term.
		Assessment
		Assessment on the "Materiality and Textuality" module take the form of three bibliographical exercises. All of the other three modules taken will be worth 20 credits each, and will be assessed by long essay (5000 words), to be submitted after the course has finished. The dissertation may be up to 20, 000 words, and must be submitted by 20 September.

Knowledge and Understanding

D. Transferable skills – able to:

- 1) Think about present-day texts and issues in the light of their literary and cultural antecedents.
- 2) Analyse and think critically about complex texts and issues.
- Assess the legitimacy of an argument in its own terms, and to formulate, both in written and oral form, complex arguments of their own, with an awareness of the relevance and consequences of their own formulations and claims.
- Communicate clearly to others their own thinking and the reasons behind it, and work with others in groups, acknowledging and comprehending a variety of arguments.
- 5) Promote awareness of ways and resources for the development of further knowledge and understanding, as part of an ability to learn independently.
- 6) Take responsibility for their own work and to meet deadlines.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

- The structure of the course, and of each module, is designed and will be taught to make explicit the emergence of many of the chornologised ideas that have informed the critical institution of English studies.
- 2) Discuss and analyse a wide variety of texts in a range of historical and intellectual contexts.
- Engage closely with these texts to develop critical and analytical skills.
- 4) Participate actively in seminar discussion, and prepare and deliver oral presentations to their peers.
- 5) A familiarity with library and IT resources is developed through the course both in terms of discussion and information on where material is available, and how such material should be approached and evaluated.
- Students will be encouraged to develop independent and disciplined thought in seminar and written work.

Assessment

All these transferable skills are assessed in the writing of the essays and the dissertation.

Please note - This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in the module description and in the programme handbook. The University reserves the right to modify this specification in unforeseen circumstances, or where the process of academic development and feedback from students, quality assurance processes or external sources, such as professional bodies, requires a change to be made. In such circumstances, a revised specification will be issued.