Summary of programme aims

The programme studies the political and economic dimensions of Europe from a multidisciplinary perspective. It provides students with a thorough knowledge of the political, economic and cultural dimensions of the EU and its place in the wider international context, a good grasp of tropical problems, developments and the current theoretical debates that surround the internal and external relations of the region. With their choice of options students are able to specialise in one of the two dimensions of the programme: political and economic.

Transferable skills

The programme will develop students' bibliographical skills by requiring them to compile bibliographies for their essays and dissertation. It will encourage students to develop their IT skills, by the use of a range of electronic databases and WWW resources in their research for essays and dissertation. It will enhance their presentational skills by making them present seminar papers to a group of students. The dissertation element will develop students' research skills and personal initiative as well as training them in structuring and summarising complex subject matter and in evaluating and presenting their own thoughts on a subject in a coherent and precise manner.

Programme content

The MA in European Studies combines taught courses with independent research. The programme consists of 180 credits; a taught element (120 credits) and a dissertation (60 credits). Students must take the two core modules 'International Relations' and 'Political Integration in Europe', which run for two terms (Autumn and Spring). In addition, students choose option modules totalling 60 credits from the list below (which can include up to 30 credits of research training). Students may take up to 30 credits in another MA programme subject to the approval of the Director of GIPIS. The students' dissertation is planned in consultation with their supervisor and is submitted for assessment in September.

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@IL) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme.

Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Programme Directors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and the Student Services Directorate. The Student Services Directorate is housed in the Carrington Building and includes the Careers Advisory Service, the Disability Advisory Service, Accommodation Advisory Team, Student Financial Support, Counselling and Study Advisors. Student Services has a Helpdesk available for enquiries made in person or online (www.risisweb.reading.ac.uk), or by calling the central enquiry number on (0118) 378 5555. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions on everything from accommodation to finance. The Carrington Building is open between 8:30 and 17:30 Monday to Thursday (17:00 Friday and during vacation periods). Further information can be found in the Student website (reading.ac.uk/student).

Students meet with their Director of Studies once a term to assess their progress. A formative essay is written by students at the beginning of the Autumn term. This essay does not contribute to the students' degree but enables their Director of Studies to spot any academic difficulties at an early stage and to agree with the student concerned appropriate strategies to resolve them.

Career prospects

Students with an MA in European Studies can find work, for example:

- in the diplomatic service,
- in EU institutions,
- in Non-Governmental Organisations,
- in Research Institutes,
- in Journalism for print media, radio and TV.

The emphasis in the programme on analytical abilities, the summarising and presentation of complex arguments and empirical evidence mean that students may go on to pursue careers in a wide range of fields such as teaching, marketing, IT, civil service, and local government. A number of students go on to further post-graduate studies at PhD level, both at The University of Reading and elsewhere.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

The programme allows for formal exchanges with the Université Libre de Bruxelles and with Charles University, Prague.

Educational aims of the programme

To provide a detailed and challenging introduction to the politics of the European Union.

To enable students to understand the debates surrounding the political integration of the European Union.

To enable students to understand the debates surrounding how integration in the European Union has altered its relations with the wider international society.

Using a range of theoretical approaches to enable students to develop an understanding of the complexity of the above issues.

To provide the analytical and intellectual basis for further academic research on the region or for careers that require a thorough understanding of the politics of the European Union.

To develop further students' critical and analytical skills through their engagement with a range of challenging theoretical and empirical literature and to demonstrate these in essays, presentations and examinations.
