Summary of programme aims

The MA in Strategic Studies offers a comprehensive education in both the theory and practice of strategy. In the current challenging strategic environment, a dedicated study of this subject is required for all those who seek to understand modern warfare and how military force can be used in the pursuit of policy objectives. The programme also provides an invaluable education for those who are currently engaged, or seek a career, in the defence profession. The MA in Strategic Studies provides a thorough analysis of contemporary strategic issues and the challenges of defence planning in the modern world. This analysis is aided by an exploration of the great works of strategic theory, and an examination of some of the most significant historical case studies in the practice of strategy. The latter will include the campaigns of Alexander the Great; US Civil War; World War Two; Vietnam; and the two US-led wars against Iraq.

Transferable skills

Amongst a range of transferable skills, this programme will provide students with those necessary for employment where there is a requirement for the exercise of initiative and personal responsibility, decision making in complex and unpredictable situations, and the independent learning ability required for continuing professional development. In addition, the programme will also provide the students with an informed and critical approach to using primary and secondary sources, and an enhanced confidence in, and effectiveness of, oral and written communication.

Programme content

The MA in Strategic Studies consists of 180 credits; a taught element (120 credits) and a dissertation (60 credits). There are two compulsory core modules, 'International Relations' and 'Modern Strategy', which run for two terms (Autumn and Spring). In addition, students choose two further optional modules, which run concurrently with the core modules. Students must also write a dissertation which is planned in consultation with a supervisor and submitted in September.

Entrants to this programme are normally required to have obtained a 2.1 Honours degree or its Equivalent. However, special consideration may be given to defence professionals based on their experience. For students whose first language is not English, an IELTS score of 6.5.

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@IL) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme.

Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Programme Directors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and the Student Services Directorate. The Student Services Directorate is housed in the Carrington Building and includes the Careers Advisory Service, the Disability Advisory Service, Accommodation Advisory Team, Student Financial Support, Counselling and Study Advisors. Student Services has a Helpdesk available for enquiries made in person or online (www.risisweb.reading.ac.uk), or by calling the central enquiry number on (0118) 378 5555. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions on everything from accommodation to finance. The Carrington Building is open between 8:30 and 17:30 Monday to Thursday (17:00 Friday and during vacation periods). Further information can be found in the Student website (reading.ac.uk/student).

Career prospects

The MA in Strategic Studies provides an excellent education for those seeking a career as a defence professional. Alternatively, for those already working in the defence field, this programme offers such a comprehensive education in the theory and practice of strategy that it can be regarded as an important element in the development of their career.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

During their studies the students will be given the opportunity to engage in a series of battlefield tours in Europe.

Educational aims of the programme
