Summary of programme aims

The central aim of this multi-disciplinary programme is to enable students to gain an understanding of major areas of cinema, of theatre since the late nineteenth century and of British and other English language television drama and documentary. Students will experience some of the varied achievements of film-makers, writers (for both the stage and television), directors, producers and theatre practitioners, and become familiar with a range of perspectives which can inform analysis of film, drama and television texts. In Television, students undertake practical work, closely informed by critical issues ('critical practice'), which is designed both to extend understanding of how television creates meaning, and to develop appropriate practical expertise.

Transferable skills

During the course of their studies at Reading, all students will be expected to enhance their academic and personal transferable skills in line with the University's Strategy for Learning and Teaching. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to develop such skills, in particular relating to communication, interpersonal skills, learning skills, self-management, use of IT and problem-solving and will have been encouraged to further develop and enhance the full set of skills through a variety of opportunities available outside their curriculum.

On completion of this degree programme, students are expected to have developed a range of transferable skills including: fluency in writing and oral communication, the ability to formulate and evaluate their own arguments and those of others, to translate subject-specific knowledge and skills to new environments, the ability to find and use relevant information resources, to manage their time effectively, and use basic wordprocessing, information retrieval and IT skills; the ability to work co-operatively with others. The practical work enables students to develop their ability to work co-operatively with others and their skills of effective communication using the methods of television and video, developing projects through co-operation and dialogue, taking leadership and management roles.

Programme content

In each Part of the degree programme students must take modules to make up a total of 120 credits. In Part 1 of the Television and Film & Theatre degree, students will take 80 credits worth of modules in the Department of Film, Theatre & Television. They will be free to acquire their remaining 40 credits from modules elsewhere in the University. In Part 2 they must normally take 60 credits in Film & Theatre and 60 credits in Television; however, in consultation with their programme adviser, students may substitute up to 20 credits from modules available elsewhere in the University. At part 3 students must normally take 40 credits in Film & Theatre and 40 credits in Television and then select a dissertation module, which will either be in Film & Theatre or in Television, or a joint dissertation. Again, in consultation with their programme adviser, students may substitute up to 20 credits from modules available elsewhere in the University.

Progression requirements

In order to progress from Part 1 to Part 2, a student shall normally be required to:

Obtain an overall average of 40% in 120 credits taken in Part 1, where all the credits are at C level or above; and Obtain a mark of at least 30% in individual modules amounting to not less than 100 credits taken in Part 1; and Obtain marks of at least 40% in all compulsory modules.

In order to progress from Part 2 to Part 3, a student shall normally be required to:

Obtain an overall average of 40% in 120 credits taken in Part 2; and Obtain a mark of at least 30% in individual modules amounting to not less than 100 credits taken in Part 2.

Summary of Teaching and Assessment

Teaching is through seminars, lectures and essay tutorials. Selected modules, including several Television modules, involve practical production exercises designed to test critical ideas. In addition the Dissertation module is supported by workshops and individual supervisions. Teaching styles are varied to encourage active engagement by students. Film and television viewing and theatre visits are central to the teaching of the degree. Over the programme as a whole, assessment will be conducted through a mixture of assessed essays, presentations, practical projects and reflective documentation, other assessed assignments plus informal and formal examination. The weighting between Part 2 and Part 3 for classification purposes is 33% and 67%. Assessment criteria for each of the Levels are given in the appropriate Departmental Handbook.

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support is provided by a wide array of services across the University, including: the University Library, the Student Employment, Experience and Careers Centre (SEEC), In-session English Support Programme, the Study Advice and Mathematics Support Centre teams, IT Services and the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@il) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and advisers in the Student Services Centre. The Student Services Centre is housed in the Carrington Building and offers advice on accommodation, careers, disability, finance, and wellbeing. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions and runs workshops and seminars on a range of topics. For more information see www.reading.ac.uk/student

Students in the Department of Film, Theatre & Television receive a Handbook, which gives details of the Programme, guidance on study skills such as note-taking and essay writing, and information about staff, facilities, and sources of specialised help within the University, such as the Study Skills Advisor and the Counselling Service. Academic feedback and guidance is given through detailed written comments. Academic and personal support for students in their studies is also provided through the University's Personal Development Planning (PDP) scheme, in which students meet their personal tutors regularly to review their progress. From a highly structured introduction in Part 1, in Parts 2 and 3 students take increasing responsibility for their learning and module choice. The Department has a range of film/video viewing rooms and extensive technical facilities for small scale production in theatre and digital video. It also houses an extensive collection of films and television programmes. The Library, which has buildings on both the Whiteknights and Bulmershe campuses, has an extensive collection of printed materials as well as electronic databases. The Bulmershe Library holds one of the country's leading academic collections of film and modern theatre material. Specialist subject librarians are available to give students advice and guidance to library resources.

Career prospects

Career possibilities for Reading graduates in Television and Film & Theatre are very wide ranging. Graduates find that the specific as well as the transferable skills developed by the programme enable them to enter many fields of work including education, publishing, journalism, management, administration, public relations, advertising and the media and performance industries. A Reading Television and Film & Theatre degree provides graduates with a range of communication, analytical, practical and social skills that will serve them in good stead in the world of work. A number of graduates each year go on to further professional training, academic study and research.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

Students have the opportunity to study abroad for a term either within Europe via the ERASMUS programme or at one of the University of Reading's non-European partner institutions. They will require the consent of the departmental study abroad coordinator and the departmental Director of Teaching and Learning in order to participate. Full details of potential destinations can be found on both the departmental and Erasmus & Study Abroad websites.

Programme Outcomes

Knowledge and Understanding

A. Knowledge and understanding of:

1. A selection of film and theatre texts from a range of national and cultural contexts from the late nineteenth century until the present day; a selection of television texts (primarily British television drama and documentary).
2. A variety of approaches to filmmaking, and television and theatre production
3. Methods of critical, dramatic, filmic and televisual analysis
4. Ways in which theatre, film and television have informed each other historically
5. Ways in which social, cultural and historical contexts inform theatre, film and television texts
6. A range of approaches in Television, Film and Theatre studies
7. Ways in which critical and theoretical perspectives can inform practical work.
8. Methods and skills of small scale television and video production.
9. Selected special fields of Television, Film and Theatre studies.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Knowledge and understanding are gained through formal teaching (lectures, seminar discussions, workshops and practical exercises, and individual essay feedback), prescribed and recommended reading and viewing, and the writing of essays and a dissertation. 7. A creative approach to problem-solving
8. Group and interpersonal skills
9. An ability to self-evaluate and self-reflect
10. Use of information technology, especially word-processing
11. Career management skills

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Intellectual skills are acquired through independent reading and viewing (1), preparation and discussion in seminars and practical exercises and workshops, essay writing (1, 2, 3, 5 and 6) and a variety of written and verbal feedback (2, 3, 4 and 5). 5 and 6 are assessed formatively and summatively through practical work supervision and documentation of practical projects.

Assessment

1 - 3 are assessed both formatively and summatively in coursework essays and take-away exams. 1 - 4 are assessed formatively through seminar discussion and essay feedback. All are assessed formatively and summatively through practical work and documentation of practical projects.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

1-3 and 6 are developed in seminars, workshops, seminar presentations, essays and essay tutorials. 4 and 5 are developed through essays, essay feedback and dissertation guidance and supervision. Skills 6, 7, 8 are developed through practical projects and accompanying reflective documentation.

Assessment

1-6 are assessed through formative and summative essays. 1 - 3 and 6 are also tested in seen and unseen examinations. Skills 6, 7, 8 are assessed through projects in a range of television forms, each of which are accompanied with critical, reflective documentation. Some assignments may be assessed through presentations as well as written reports /essays, enabling the assessment of 9.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Transferable skills are developed through seminar and workshop discussions (1, 2, 3, 4, 7 and 9), through seminar presentations, essay writing, tutorial feedback, seen and unseen examinations (1 - 9), and through sessions and assignments associated with the module on Careers Management Skills (11). 4 and 7 particularly are developed through requiring students to draw on acquired knowledge and skills when analysing new material in essays, seen and unseen examinations. The majority of these skills (including 7, 8 and 9) are developed through practical work and accompanying critical reflection (in class and on the page). 5 and 10 are developed through use of the library and other sources of information, for seminar preparation, essay writing and research for the dissertation. We require that all summatively assessed essays are word-processed (10).

Assessment

1 - 8 and 9 are formatively assessed through coursework essays, workshops, practical projects and seminar presentations, and summatively assessed through essays, seen and unseen examinations, group / individual practical projects / accompanying documentation and the dissertation. 9 is encouraged through essay feedback and essay tutorials, and in reflective discussion in class and in the documentation around practical projects. 8 is encouraged through seminars, workshops, tutorials, and group practical projects.

Please note - This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in the module description and in the programme handbook. The University reserves the right to modify this specification in unforeseen circumstances, or where the process of academic development and feedback from students, quality assurance process or external sources, such as professional bodies, requires a change to be made. In such circumstances, a revised specification will be issued.
