Summary of programme aims

The MA by Research in Film Studies aims to enable students

- to build on their undergraduate studies, deepening their knowledge and theoretical understanding of a selected topic area in Film Studies;
- to enhance existing skills in the analysis of film and broaden their knowledge and understanding of their chosen subject area and its methods;
- to develop their abilities in critically evaluating primary and secondary source material;
- to work closely with a specialist supervisor or supervisory team who will direct and support their research activities;
- to develop their research skills, including IT skills, and prepare them, where appropriate, for research degrees.

Transferable skills

The University's Strategy for Teaching and Learning has identified a number of generic transferable skills which all students are expected to have developed by the end of their degree programme. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to enhance their skills relating to research, communication of complex material (both written and oral), information handling, time management, problem-solving, self-directed learning and use of information technology. The MA by Research in Film Studies will in addition help students develop skills such as: synthesising information from a range of sources, providing a coherent overview of and analysing and critically evaluating competing theories and interpretations; planning and producing a substantial piece of research (and in some cases critical practice) under supervision; presentational skills; a range of research skills.

Programme content

The MA by Research in Film Studies combines three taught modules with independent research (either in the form of a written dissertation or, for suitably qualified students, research through practice in the discipline which involves the combination of a practical project with documentation). In the Autumn term, students follow the core module on Critical Debates in Film, Theatre & Television along with a disciplinary specific module on Film Analysis. In both Autumn and Spring terms, students also follow the core taught module in Research Methods. Students will develop their independent research throughout the year, supported by regular meetings with their supervisor(s) and in the Summer Term, dissertation seminars attended by staff and students.

MA by Research in Film Studies (180 credits):

Code	Title	Credits	Level
	Compulsory Core modules
FTMCD	Critical Debates in Film, Theatre & Television	30	7
FTMFA	Film Analysis	30	7
FTMRM	Research Methods	30	7
FTMDS	Dissertation	90	7
	Or
FTMDP	Dissertation with Critical Practice	90	7

Postgraduate Diploma in Film Studies (120 credits):

Students who complete FTMCD, FTMFA and FTMRM (30 credits each) and submit a dissertation of half the length normally required or an equivalent in research by practice (90 credits) are eligible for the Postgraduate Diploma.

Part-time or modular arrangements

Students taking the MA over 24 months take the core taught modules in the Autumn and Spring terms of their first year. They will begin to plan their Dissertation/Dissertation with Critical Practice during Summer Year One and will continue to work under supervision on their Dissertation/ Dissertation with Critical Practice until it is submitted at the end of their second year.

Part-time arrangements for Diplomas will be made as and when necessary.

Assessment and classification

The programme is taught by a mixture of individual tutorials, research training and research seminars with student presentations and structured discussion.

Assessment for MA by Research in Film Studies

The Critical Debates in Film, Theatre & Television module is assessed by one 5,000 word essay as is the module in Film Analysis. The Research Methods module is assessed through three written assignments (weighted at 20%, 40% and 40% respectively). The pass mark for all modules is 50%. Failed essays must be resubmitted by 1 September. A failed dissertation must be resubmitted within one year.

MA By Research in Film Studies

- 2 x 5,000 word essays at 30 credits each
- 1 x written proposal for the dissertation; 1 x 5,000 word essay that will include a literature survey and bibliography on a topic chosen by the student and discussion on aspects of research methodology at 30 credits in total
- 1 x 20,000 word dissertation (or equivalent dissertation with critical practice) at 90 credits.

Postgraduate Diploma in Film Studies

- 2 x 5,000 words essays at 30 credits each
- 1 x written proposal for the dissertation; 1 x 5,000 word essay that will include a literature survey and bibliography on a topic chosen by the student and discussion on aspects of research methodology at 30 credits in total
- 1 x 10,000 word dissertation (or equivalent dissertation with critical practice) at 90 credits.

The University's taught postgraduate marks classification is as follows:

Mark Interpretation

70 - 100% Distinction

60 - 69% Merit

50 - 59% Good standard (Pass)

Failing categories

40 - 49% Work below threshold standard

0 - 39% Unsatisfactory Work

For Masters Degrees

To pass the degree of MA by Research in Film Studies students must gain an average mark of 50 or more overall including a mark of 50 or more for the Dissertation/ Dissertation with Critical Practice. In addition, the total credit value of all modules marked below 40 must not exceed 30 credits and for all modules marked below 50 must not exceed 55 credits.

Students who gain an average mark of 70 or more overall including a mark of 70 or more for the dissertation and have no mark below 40 will be awarded a Distinction. Those gaining an average mark of 60 or more overall including a mark of 60 or more for the dissertation and have no mark below 40 will be awarded a Merit.

For Postgraduate Diplomas

To pass the Postgraduate Diploma in Film Studies students must gain an average mark of 50 or more. In addition the total credit value of all modules marked below 40 must not exceed 30 credits and for all modules marked below 50 must not exceed 55 credits.

Students who gain an average mark of 70 or more and have no mark below 40 will be eligible for the award of a Distinction. Those gaining an average mark of 60 or more and have no mark below 40 will be awarded eligible for a Merit.

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support is provided by a wide array of services across the University, including: the University Library, the Student Employment, Experience and Careers Centre (SEEC), In-sessional English Support Programme, the Study Advice and Mathematics Support Centre teams, IT Services and the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@il) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and advisers in the Student Services Centre. The Student Services Centre is housed in the Carrington Building and offers advice on accommodation, careers, disability, finance, and wellbeing. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions and runs workshops and seminars on a range of topics. For more information see www.reading.ac.uk/student

Department of Film, Theatre & Television MA students receive a Handbook, which gives details of the Programme, guidance on study skills such as note-taking and essay writing, and information about staff, facilities, and sources of specialised help within the University, such as the Study Skills Advisor and the Counselling Service. Academic feedback and guidance is given through detailed written comments, and academic and personal support is provided through the personal tutor system. The Department has a range of film/video viewing rooms and specialist studio and theatre spaces for practical theatre and multi-media performance, together with extensive technical facilities for small scale production in theatre and film/video, including digital video equipment. It also houses an extensive collection of films and television programmes. The Library has an extensive collection of printed materials as well as electronic databases and holds one of the country's leading academic collections of film and modern theatre material. Specialist subject librarians are available to give students advice and guidance to library resources.

Career prospects

Over the years, students who have followed MA programmes in the Department of Film, Theatre & Television have taken up a wide range of careers. Graduates have found that the specific as well as the transferable skills developed by the programme enable them to enter many fields of work including theatre, education, publishing, journalism, the media, management, administration, public relations and advertising, as well as many jobs with no subject-specific relationship. Some go on to further study at PhD level and obtain academic and academic-related jobs. A Reading MA provides graduates with a range of communication, analytical, practical and social skills that will serve them in excellent stead in the world of work.

Programme Outcomes

Knowledge and Understanding

A. Knowledge and understanding of:

1. A range of critical and theoretical approaches appropriate to the student's chosen topic in Film Studies
2. Current debates in the discipline

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Knowledge and understanding of 1-5 are gained through supervision and feedback on coursework essays and dissertation and associated reading and research, and also seminars and student

3. Methods of textual analysis appropriate to the discipline
4. Selected special areas in the discipline
5. Ways in which social, cultural and historical contexts inform texts and productions in the discipline
6. In certain cases, how critical and theoretical perspectives can inform practical work in the discipline.

presentations. 6 is based on group and/or individual practical work with accompanying documentation, under staff supervision (for those with prior experience of production in the discipline). Both supervision and the taught modules offer support for student learning in critical and theoretical perspectives on the discipline (1-3), textual analysis and the context for such work (3-5).

Assessment

Knowledge and understanding are tested through a combination of coursework essays and dissertation or, for those with prior experience of practice, individual practical work with accompanying documentation.

Skills and other attributes

B. Intellectual skills - able to:

1. Capacity for independent, sophisticated and theoretically-aware textual analysis and research
2. Ability to synthesise information from a range of sources and provide a coherent overview of competing theories, positions and interpretations
3. Ability to reflect on one's own ideas and those of others
4. Apply conceptual frameworks and methods of analysis to new contexts and material.
5. Ability to plan and produce a substantial piece of research under supervision
6. In some cases, ability to integrate critical thinking with creative work.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Intellectual skills are acquired through independent reading and viewing (1, 2), preparation for and discussion in tutorials, research seminars and in essay writing (1, 2, 3, 4), essay feedback (2, 3, 4), supervised dissertation or practical work and documentation (5 and 6).

Assessment

1 - 3 are assessed both formatively and summatively in essays. 1- 4 are assessed formatively through tutorial and seminar discussion and essay feedback. 5 and 6 are assessed formatively and summatively through supervised work on the dissertation or practical work with documentation.

C. Practical skills - able to:

1. The ability to criticise and formulate interpretations of texts in the discipline
2. An ability to engage in critical argument using relevant theoretical approaches
3. Research skills
4. A knowledge of appropriate conventions in the presentation of written work
5. An ability to relate studies in the discipline to cultural and social issues
6. In some cases, an ability to express critical understanding through exploratory practice in the discipline and to critically evaluate work produced.

5. Time-management skills and the ability to manage personal workloads
6. A creative approach to problem-solving

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Transferable skills are developed through tutorial and seminar discussions, seminar presentations, the preparation and writing of essay assignments, feedback on written work, research for and writing the dissertation. 5, 6 and 8 are also developed in those cases where students with prior experience undertake a practical project with documentation rather than a dissertation.

7. Giving oral presentations
8. Undertaking self-directed, independent work
9. Using IT and other scholarly resources.

Assessment

1 - 5 and 10 are formatively and summatively assessed through written coursework essays, seminar presentations and dissertation (or practical project with documentation).

Please note - This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in the module description and in the programme handbook. The University reserves the right to modify this specification in unforeseen circumstances, or where the process of academic development and feedback from students, quality assurance process or external sources, such as professional bodies, requires a change to be made. In such circumstances, a revised specification will be issued.
