Summary of programme aims

This is a multi-disciplinary programme that aims to provide students with subject specific knowledge and more general skills, including knowledge of a variety of different kinds of literary and film texts, from a range of different periods. Students will become familiar with the variety of critical perspectives and analytical methods within and between the disciplines. The course aims to foster an independent approach to formulating problems and arguments, using the close reading and analytical skills that are fundamental to the disciplines of English Literature and Film. The programme also incorporates the study of television which students can make a larger or smaller part of their studies according to the options pursued. The programme aims to develop students' intellectual potential, enabling them to progress to a wide range of careers or to postgraduate study, while also promoting a lifelong love of learning.

Transferable skills

During the course of their studies at Reading, all students will be expected to enhance their academic and personal transferable skills. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to develop such skills, in particular relating to communication, interpersonal skills, learning skills, numeracy, self management, use of IT and problem-solving and will have been encouraged to further develop and enhance the full set of skills through a variety of opportunities available outside their curriculum.

From their studies in English Literature and Film, students are expected to gain a range of transferable intellectual and personal skills including: the ability to communicate fluently and effectively; the ability to formulate and evaluate their own arguments and those of others, and to translate subject-specific knowledge and skills to new environments; the ability to work both independently and co-operatively with others; effective time-management; the ability to access and deploy relevant information resources, and to develop word-processing and IT skills. Opportunities will be provided to enhance skills in numeracy and career management.

Programme content

Part 1 of the joint degree programme introduces students to debates about approaches to the study of literature and film, and to methodologies of critical analysis, through close study of selected texts. Parts 2 and 3 offer a greater element of choice, a more concentrated focus on individual historical periods, topics, and/or generic traditions, and an increasing opportunity for specialization and independent study.

Each Part of the degree programme comprises 120 credits. In Part 1, students take a minimum of 60 credits in the School of English Literature and a minimum of 40 credits in Film and Theatre. In Parts 2 and 3 they must also normally take 60 credits each year in both English Literature and Film & Theatre, but, in consultation with their programme adviser, they may choose to take up to 20 Intermediate (Part 2) credits from modules available elsewhere in the University.

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support is provided by a wide array of services across the University, including: the University Library, the Careers, Placement and Experience Centre (CPEC), In-session English Support Programme, the Study Advice and Mathematics Support Centre teams, IT Services and the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@il) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and advisers in the Student Services Centre. The Student Services Centre is housed in the Carrington Building and offers advice on accommodation, careers, disability, finance, and wellbeing, academic issues (eg problems with module selection) and exam related queries. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions and runs workshops and seminars on a range of topics. For more information see www.reading.ac.uk/student

Students receive handbooks which give details of the programme, guidance on study skills such as note-taking and essay writing, and information about staff, facilities, and sources of specialized help within the University, such as the Study Skills Advisor and the Counselling Service. The programme is designed to give students extensive teaching support in Part 1 leading to more independent work in Part 3. Academic feedback and guidance is given through one-to-one essay tutorials, and academic and personal support is provided through the tutor system and the University's Personal and Academic Record (PAR) Scheme. Dissertation workshops prepare students for the Part 3 dissertation, which is individually supervised. The Geoffrey Matthews Collection, housed in the Department of English Language & Literature, provides books, photocopied materials, cassettes and a growing library of videos for loan to students. A video-viewing suite is available on the Whiteknights campus. The Department of Film, Theatre & Television has an extensive collection of film and television programmes, to which students may have access. The Library is well stocked with printed materials as well as essential electronic databases on-line and on CD ROM, such as the OED, the MLA Bibliography, and JSTOR. Specialist subject librarians are available to give students advice and guidance to library resources.

Career learning

Careers Learning is embedded in compulsory modules throughout the programme. Students also have the opportunity to partake in an academic placement as part of the overall assessment of any Part 2 or Part 3 English Literature module, which encourages engagement with forward-thinking career planning. The University's Careers Advisory Service (CAS) provides all Reading students with information about a wide range of placement opportunities (<http://www.reading.ac.uk/careers/placements>), including the Summer Enterprise Experience & Discovery internship scheme (<http://www.reading.ac.uk/careers/placements/seed>), the Community Service Volunteering scheme (tutoring in local schools; <http://www.reading.ac.uk/studentrecruitment/StudentTutoring/sr-studenttutoringinschools.aspx>), the Student Associates Scheme (work experience in local schools; http://www.reading.ac.uk/internal/urop/urop_home.aspx), and the Undergraduate Research Opportunities Programme (UROP; http://www.reading.ac.uk/internal/urop/urop_home.aspx). The Department of English Language and Literature also has a Careers Tutor available to advise students in English Literature on researching and planning their career choices.

Career prospects

Since the English Literature and Film degree is not a directly vocational programme, career possibilities are very wide-ranging. Graduates find that the specific as well as the transferable skills developed by the programme enable them to enter many fields of work including education, publishing, journalism, the media, management, administration, public relations, advertising and the performance industries. A Reading degree in English Literature and Film provides graduates with a range of communication and analytical skills that will serve them in good stead in the world of work. A number of graduates each year go on to further academic study and research.

During their time at Reading students have the opportunity to develop non-vocational skills, gain new work experiences, and further boost their employability through a diverse range of other placement opportunities. Graduates find that the specific as well as the transferable skills developed by the programme enable them to enter many professions both across the cultural field and outside it including education, commerce and industry, arts administration, advertising, marketing, translation, the performance industries and the media generally. The degree may also be a prelude to study in law or accountancy. The programme is also an excellent preparation for further study at postgraduate level in both subject areas and areas such as teacher training.

The University's Careers Advisory Service (CAS) provides all Reading students with information about a wide range of placement opportunities(<http://www.reading.ac.uk/careers/placements>), including the Summer Enterprise Experience & Discovery internship scheme (<http://www.reading.ac.uk/careers/placements/seed>), the Community Service Volunteering scheme (tutoring in local schools; <http://www.reading.ac.uk/studentrecruitment/StudentTutoring/sr-studenttutoringinschools.aspx>), the Student Associates Scheme (work experience in local schools; http://www.reading.ac.uk/internal/urop/urop_home.aspx), and the Undergraduate Research Opportunities Programme (UROP; http://www.reading.ac.uk/internal/urop/urop_home.aspx).

Opportunities for study abroad

Students have the opportunity to study abroad for a term either within Europe via the ERASMUS programme or at one of the University of Reading's non-European partner institutions. They will require the consent of both departmental study abroad coordinators and the Programme Director in order to participate. Full details of potential destinations can be found on both the departmental and Erasmus & Study Abroad websites.

Placement opportunities

Students have the opportunity to partake in an academic placement as part of the overall assessment of any Part 2 or Part 3 English Literature module, which encourages engagement with forward-thinking career planning. In addition, there are opportunities to undertake negotiated placements for credit within the optional Work Based Learning module.
