Summary of programme aims

The single subject degree in History offers insights into the richness and variety of human experience. Throughout this process of discovery, students encounter a wide range of subjects and approaches, while having the opportunity to pursue their own enthusiasms and to benefit from the research expertise and activities of staff. We aim to familiarise students with a broad chronological range, whilst providing them with the opportunity of specialisation in particular periods and areas of British, European, African, American, Russian, Middle Eastern and South Asian history. It also enables students to pursue their own interests through independent study and a Dissertation. Students will usually have the opportunity to spend the autumn term of Part 2 or up to 12 months at a partner university abroad. Subject-based and transferable skills are developed in a programme which encourages a scholarly, committed and enthusiastic engagement with the study of the past. In addition, this programme provides students with experience of study abroad and living in another culture.

Transferable skills

During the course of their studies at Reading, all students will be expected to enhance their academic and personal transferable skills. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to develop such skills, in particular relating to communication, interpersonal skills, learning skills, numeracy, self-management, use of IT and problem-solving and will have been encouraged to further develop and enhance the full set of skills through a variety of opportunities available outside their curriculum. Students on this programme will also gain the ability to translate subject specific knowledge and transferable skills to new environments, and to use relevant information resources, to manage their time and to work cooperatively within new environments.

Programme content

Students must take 120 credits in each Part. At Parts 2 and 3 students have a mixture of compulsory core modules and Options. At Part 3, students have a choice of Options and Special Subjects and must complete a Dissertation.

Part 1 introduces students to the discipline through study of long-term historical change across the medieval, early-modern and modern periods, with an introduction to the sub-fields of political, social, intellectual and cultural history. In addition they learn the scholarly protocols of formal essay-writing and engaging in historiographical debate. In Part 2 students are required to engage with methodology and to begin the process of identifying a Dissertation topic, and to engage with history beyond academia. Through Options, they are given the opportunity to gain more specialized historical knowledge across a broad array of historical periods and geographical areas. (Not all Options will necessarily be available in any year.) Part 3 involves more in-depth study in Options and a Special Subject (if the Study Abroad is in Part 2) which requires close readings of primary sources in areas close to staff research interests. Students will also conduct supervised, independent research for the Dissertation

This programme also permits students to replace between 40-60 (or 100) credits of their programme within Part 2 with up to 60 (or 100) credits from studying abroad, or to replace 40 credits in Part 3 with studying abroad.

Part 1 (three terms)

Compulsory modules

Code	Title	Credits	Level
HS1RSO	Research Skills and Opportunities in History	20	4

HS1JH1	Journeys through History 1: Power and People	20	4
HS1JH2	Journeys through History 2: Culture and Concept	20	4

Option modules (60 credits)

Students may choose an additional 0-60 credits in History from the following Part 1 Options

Code	Title	Credits	Level
HS1II	Ideas and Ideologies	20	4
HS1PP	Past and Present	20	4
HS1TC	Text and Contexts	20	4

or 0-60 credits can be chosen from modules available elsewhere in the University

Part 2 (three terms)

Compulsory modules

Code	Title	Credits	Level
HS2HAD	Historical approaches and My Dissertation	20	5

Optional modules:

Students will usually spend the autumn term of Part 2 up to the entire twelve months of Part 2 at a partner university abroad. Destination choices cannot be guaranteed and places offered may vary from year to year. Qualification for Study Abroad depends on a good 2:1 performance during Part 1. The marks acquired at a partner university abroad will be directly transferred to the Reading transcript by the departmental Study Abroad Coordinator and must, within ten credits, meet the Reading requirements.

Students who study in Reading for Part 2 (I.e. where their period abroad is in Part 3 of the programme) must take FOUR Part 2 Option modules (20 credits each). Students should normally take HS2MC1 My Career: Working It Out and HS2PHI Public History: Its Uses and Abuses, in addition to the four Part 2 Option modules and the compulsory HS2HAD Historical Approaches and My Dissertation module.

Students who study abroad during the autumn term of Part 2 must take the equivalent of 40-60 credits in their host university. They must also take the compulsory 20-credit module HS2HAD Historical Approaches and My Dissertation in the Spring term of Part 2 along with TWO Part 2 Option modules at 20 credits each. For those Study Abroad students taking 50 credits abroad in the autumn term, it is recommended that they also take HS2MC2 My Career: Wider Horizons in the spring term.

- Students who are permitted to take only 40 credits at their host institution while abroad usually take THREE Part 2 Option modules in the Spring term. They must also take the compulsory 20-credit module HS2HAD Historical Approaches and My Dissertation.
- Students who take 50 credits abroad normally take TWO Part 2 Option modules at 20 credits each, plus the compulsory 20-credit module HS2HAD Historical Approaches and My Dissertation' in the Spring term of Part 2. Students are recommended to take the 10-credit HS2MC2 My Career: Wider Horizons, or they may take the 10 credit Independent Historiographical Essay module HS2IHE with the agreement of the Director of Teaching and Learning.

Students who wish to Study Abroad for two terms in Part 2 should complete 100 credits at their host institution, plus the compulsory 20-credit module 'Historical Approaches and My Dissertation' while abroad, based upon a specific study of primary sources for their Part 3 Dissertation to be decided in conjunction with the Historical Approaches and My Dissertation convenor who will liaise by email. Exercises for this module will also be available remotely via Blackboard so that Study Abroad students will be able to follow the course from abroad.

In all cases, a 20 credit module elsewhere in the University may replace one 20 credit Part 2 Option module. A complete list of Option modules is available from the Department of History.

Part 3 (three terms)

Compulsory modules

Code	Title	Credits	Level
HS3HLD	Dissertation in History	40	6

Optional modules- Topics

Students who chose to Study Abroad in Part 3 must complete 40 credits in their host university in the Autumn term of Part 3. They should also work closely on their 40-credit Dissertation while studying abroad, and regularly keep their supervisor informed of progress.

Students must also take TWO 20-credit Part 3 Option modules in the Spring term at Reading. Students who complete their Study Abroad in Part 2 (rather than Part 3) must complete a 40-credit dissertation, two 20-credit Part 3 Option modules (one in each term) and a 40 credit Special Subject module in Part 3.

A 20-credit module offered elsewhere in the University may replace one 20-credit Part 3 Option module.

A complete list of Part 3 Option and Special Subject modules is available from the Department of History.

Progression requirements

To progress from Part 1 to Part 2, students must achieve:

- (i) an overall average of 40% over the 120 credits taken in Part 1,
- (ii) and obtain at least 40% in each compulsory module,
- (iii) and achieve a mark of at least 30% in modules representing a total of at least 100 credits.

To gain a threshold performance at Part 2 to progress to Part 3, a student shall normally be required to achieve:

- (i) a weighted average of 40% over 120 credits taken in Part 2
- (ii) marks of at least 40% in individual modules amounting to not less than 80 credits
- (iii) marks of at least 30% in individual modules amounting to not less than 120 credits.

Mark	Interpretation
70% - 100%	First class
60% - 69%	Upper Second class
50% - 59%	Lower Second class
40% - 49%	Third class
35% - 39%	Below Honours Standard
0% - 34%	Fail

All Parts are assessed by a mixture of coursework and timed examination. At all levels, independent research is expected and encouraged. It is most apparent and significant in the preparation of the Dissertation at Parts 2 and 3, although individual supervisory support is also provided.

At Part 1, teaching in the core modules Journeys through History 1 & 2, and Research Skills and Opportunities in History, is by large group lectures augmented by seminars; assessment is by written assignment only, not timed examination. Options are taught by seminar and assessed by a mixture of written assignment and timed examination.

At Part 2 teaching is by a mixture of lectures and seminars. The Part 2 core modules Historical Approaches/My Dissertation and Public History/My Career/Wider Horizons are assessed by written assignment only. Options are assessed by a mixture of written assignment and timed examination.

At Part 3 teaching is predominantly by seminar. Special Subjects involve close document readings and are assessed by timed examination and written assignment. Options are taught by lectures and seminars and assessed by a mixture of written assignment and timed examination. Two optional Part 3 modules, History Education and Discovering Archives and Collections, are assessed by a mixture of performance on a 10-day placement, written coursework and oral presentation. The Dissertation involves supervised independent research, and includes an element of oral presentation.

Classification

For the University-wide framework for honours classification, which includes details of the classification method, please see: <http://www.reading.ac.uk/internal/exams/Policies/exa-class.aspx>.

The weighting of the Parts/Years in the calculation of the degree classification is:

Part 2: one-third

Part 3: two-thirds.

Admission requirements

Admission requirements

A levels: AAB - ABB from three A levels including a B in History/Ancient History.

IB: 35-32 points overall including 5 in History at higher level.

Those not offering A level or IB qualifications are advised to contact the Admissions Office as to the acceptability of their qualifications. For those whose education has not been undertaken in English, the IELTS requirement is 7.0, with no language component under 6.0.

Admissions Tutor: Dr Rachel Foxley

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support is provided by a wide array of services across the University, including: the University Library, the Careers, Placement and Experience Centre (CPEC), In-session English Support Programme, the Study Advice and Mathematics Support Centre teams, IT Services and the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@il) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and advisers in the Student Services Centre. The Student Services Centre is housed in the Carrington Building and offers advice on accommodation, careers, disability, finance, and wellbeing, academic issues (eg problems with module selection) and exam related queries. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions and runs workshops and seminars on a range of topics. For more information see www.reading.ac.uk/student

In the Department of History, students are provided with handbooks which outline the programme, provide guidance on study skills, and contain information on staff, facilities, and sources of specialised help within the University. Additional support is given through orientation sessions on module choices, and Dissertation advice. There is full written feedback on essay work. Each module teacher gives personal guidance and feedback and sends termly reports on progress to Personal Tutors for discussion with students. There is also a History Resource Room which provides quiet study space.

Career learning

Career prospects

History graduates are trained in clear thinking, research skills, diligence, independence, adaptability and the ability to understand people and situations in the world at large. As such, they are eagerly sought after by employers. In addition they are given specific vocational training and orientation through the second year My Career:Wider Horizons module, and the third year optional modules, History Education and Discovering Archives and Collections. Past graduates have used their degree as a springboard for various areas of employment such as journalism, the media, publishing, information science, museum work, banking and commerce, accountancy, law, teaching and social work. Many also enter the business world through management training schemes operated by national companies in retailing, marketing, sales, computing, while others go into the civil service and local government. Several graduates also go on to postgraduate study in History, both at MA and PhD level, at Reading and elsewhere.

Opportunities for study abroad

As part of the degree programme students have the opportunity to study abroad at an institution with which the University has a valid agreement. These currently exist for North America, Europe and Australia. Students in the department of History have the opportunity to spend a period of study abroad (normally in Part 2). Students wishing to study abroad will require the consent of the Departmental study abroad coordinator in order to participate. Full details of potential destinations can be found on both the Erasmus and Study Abroad websites.

Placement opportunities

Students have the opportunity to partake in an academic placement in the Discovering Archives and Collections module and History Education (teaching placement) module at Part 3, which also encourages engagement with forward-thinking career planning.

During your time at Reading you will also have the opportunity to develop non-vocational skills, gain new work experiences, and further boost your employability through a diverse range of other placement opportunities. The University's Careers, Placement and Experience Centre (CPEC) provide all Reading students with information about a wide range of placement opportunities (<http://www.reading.ac.uk/careers/placements/>):

- including the Summer Enterprise Experience & Discovery internship scheme

(<http://www.reading.ac.uk/careers/placements/seed/>),

- the Community Service Volunteering scheme (tutoring in local schools:

<http://www.reading.ac.uk/studentrecruitment/StudentTutoring/sr-studenttutoringinschools.aspx>),

- the Student Tutoring Scheme (work experience in local schools;

http://www.reading.ac.uk/internal/urop/urop_home.aspx),

- and the Undergraduate Research Opportunities Programme (UROP; http://www.reading.ac.uk/internal/urop/urop_home.aspx).

Programme Outcomes

The programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, skills, qualities and other attributes in the following areas:

Knowledge and Understanding

A. Knowledge and understanding of:

1. the broad sweep of post-classical history and its principal periodisations
2. a range of eras and cultures, within a degree structure flexible enough to allow breadth or specialisation
3. the contextualisation of forces, events, and individual experiences in the historical process
4. the nature and variety of historical sources as

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Part 1 introduces students to ideas about periodisation, while Part 2 introduces students to different international contexts. Students learn to compare and contrast. At Part 1 formal lectures impart crucial information and perspective. As the degree progresses, less use is made of the lecture format and students engage with historical problems and texts in seminars and defined by period and culture

5. the nature of debate and dispute in historical writing workshops. Class sizes become progressively smaller as greater emphasis is placed on student-centered learning. Some formative assessment will be expected via the Virtual Learning Environment.

Assessment

Students' knowledge and understanding are tested through a combination of unseen examinations, a variety of coursework assignments, including essays, projects and the Dissertation. Understanding is also assessed in the oral presentation associated with the Dissertation.

Skills and other attributes

B. Intellectual skills - able to:

1. accumulate and apply information and perspective in a structured manner
2. identify and appreciate the forces which generate historical change
3. analyse and solve historical problems, and formulate arguments based on evidence (or apply inductive logic when faced with gaps in the evidence)
4. develop a critical and nuanced appreciation of issues, and challenge received conclusions
5. negotiate both primary and secondary sources in history, and demonstrate how they inter-relate
6. develop creative intelligence in independent research and interpretation

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Through specific focus on topics, issues and texts in seminars, workshops and personal study, students are enabled to develop critical modes of enquiry about the selection and treatment of material. Through essay, project, and dissertation preparation, the research and analytical skills are reinforced which are necessary to form and to validate arguments and judgments. The Historical Approaches and My Dissertation module focuses students on methodological issues in historical writing, while the Dissertation requires them to engage creatively and critically with primary sources and/or historical interpretative works.

Assessment

Essay and project work tests all aspects of intellectual skills, while examinations assess the ability to marshal information and arguments under given time constraints. The Dissertation represents the evaluation of personal research and creative interpretation.

C. Practical skills - able to:

1. develop and carry out individual research programmes and strategies
2. locate and synthesise large quantities of material
3. prepare bibliographies and references according to the conventions of the discipline
4. use IT to access sources and information relating to the subject
5. engage in group discussion and debate on historical issues
6. develop a critical self-awareness as a working historian
7. The ability to negotiate and study abroad at a host institution.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

All of the practical skills are present in each Part, and are developed through essay and project work as well as through seminars and workshops. The Part 2 Option modules consist of various appropriate exercises aimed to promote, amongst other things, research, IT and referencing skills. The Public History and My Career co-requisite modules also foster employability, as do the optional Part 3 modules, History Education and Discovering Archives and Collections. Feedback on an individual basis, combined with the University's personal tutor system, encourages constructive self-criticism. Full support is given to students studying abroad via the Study Abroad coordinator.

Assessment

Essential independent research skills are assessed in Part 1 through Research Skills and Opportunities in History and at Part 2 in Historical Approaches. The Special Subject and Dissertation test the ability to sift and interpret large quantities of material. Options assess the ability of candidates to assimilate a wide secondary literature and to identify debates within the subject field, and encourage students to relate the particular to the general as encountered in the core modules.

D. Transferable skills - able to:

1. present findings and arguments in a cogent and coherent manner, both orally and in writing
2. use IT for word-processing and information retrieval
3. use library resources to optimum effect
4. operate effectively in a group
5. show a competence in numeracy within the parameters of the subject
6. assess aptitudes in preparation for a career
7. work to deadlines
8. The ability to translate subject-specific knowledge and skills into other environments while studying abroad.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Assessment

Written skills are examined at every stage both under timed conditions and in course work. Oral skills are examined in the presentation associated with the Dissertation

Please note - This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in the module description and in the programme handbook. The University reserves the right to modify this specification in unforeseen circumstances, or where the process of academic development and feedback from students, quality assurance process or external sources, such as professional bodies, requires a change to be made. In such circumstances, a revised specification will be issued.
