Programme information and content

The aim of this programme is to enable nurses and midwives to practise and develop as independent and supplementary prescribers and to meet the standards set by the Nursing and Midwifery Council.

The programme is based on a philosophy of student led, practitioner centred, workplace-based learning. Practitioners are expected to take responsibility for managing their learning and achieving the programme objectives. The ethos and culture of the programme is to enhance and develop self-reliance and an independent approach to learning in support of continuing professional development.

The programme has a strong practice focus and will emphasise and develop practitioners skills in consultation and clinical decision making. The use of evidence-based practice will be encouraged throughout and the principles of clinical pharmacology and influences on the psychology of prescribing will also be addressed. The legal, ethical and accountability issues around prescribing will be examined and emphasis will be placed on the students working within their level of competence.

The programme is formed of compulsory modules as detailed below. Students can discuss opportunities to transfer their learning to the MSc in Advancing Healthcare Practice programme.

The programme is integrated into the practitioners' existing employment.
