Programme information and content

The programme aims to equip students with the specialist knowledge and skills they require to succeed as professionals, scholars and leaders in the field of international law. This main aim is promoted by pursuing the following specific aims:

To provide a structured postgraduate law degree which examines in depth aspects of different subfields of international law.

To provide a flexible programme through the independent study of a dissertation component in international law, a compulsory module on research methodologies assisting students to develop their dissertation plan, and a range of optional modules analysing both theoretical and practical aspects of international law.

To help students develop an array of both analytical and critical skills, as well as practical, generic and personal transferable skills, through independent study and working with others.

To allow students to claim a specialist pathway in Transnational Law, Development, Conflict, provided they take required modules from a pathway list specified by the School and write a project on a topic related to the pathway selected.

Module information

The programme comprises of 180 credits, allocated across a range of compulsory and optional modules. Compulsory modules are listed.

Compulsory modules

Module	Name	Credits	Level
LWMIIA	Introduction to International Law	10	M
LWMTDI	Dissertation	60	M

Students must select one of the following modules:

Module Code	Title	Credits	Level
LWMTRM	Research Methods	30	7
Or
LWMTLM	Research methods for LLM Students	10	7

The remaining credits will be taken from the list of optional modules from the School of Law or from an approved list of modules from across the University.

Students may remain on LLM International Law, or follow one of the pathways listed below. Students taking a pathway should apply for the pathway at the point of entry. However it may be possible for students to join a pathway at a later stage if they have fulfilled all of the requirements.

PATHWAYS

Full-time January entrants

Please note that the Dissertation submission date falls in early September, whereas you will study some of your taught modules in the (subsequent) Autumn term. You may wish to bear that in mind when choosing a Dissertation topic.

Part-time or flexible modular arrangements

The programme can be taken part-time over two years. In the first year of study, a student will normally be required to complete optional modules totalling no less than 50 credits and no more than 80 credits. In the second year of study, a student will normally be required to complete the compulsory module LWMTLM Research Methods for LLM Students or LWMTRM Research Methods, the LWMTDI Dissertation module and any remaining optional modules. The programme may not be completed over more than two years.

Additional costs of the programme

The readings required for each module will be made available in electronic form and/or in hard copy in the library. Students who wish to purchase their own copies of relevant books and materials must do so at their own expense.

Optional modules

The optional modules available can vary from year to year. An indicative list of the range of optional modules for your Programme is set out in the Further Programme Information. Details of any additional costs associated with the optional modules, will be made available to you prior to the beginning of the programme. Entry to optional modules will be at the discretion of the University and subject to availability. Although the University tries to ensure you are able to take the optional modules in which you have expressed interest this cannot be guaranteed.

Placement opportunities

From time to time opportunities for internship and similar placements may arise and the School facilitates a number of such opportunities.
