Programme information and content

The Consumer Behaviour and Marketing programme explores the theory and practice of consumer science and core principles of marketing. We aim to introduce you to a range of degree-level multidisciplinary subjects in consumer behaviour and marketing to develop an understanding of the psychology of a consumer. You will explore how the consumer influences, and is influenced by, the socio-economic environment, how consumer choices are made, how they can be modified and how the marketing of goods and services is interactively shaped by consumer needs, values and culture.

On this programme, you have the opportunity to apply your knowledge to chosen fields of interest. Among others, you will develop core skills in the areas of consumer behaviour, marketing, consumer psychology, economics and marketing research methods. A wide variety of options from across the University will enable you to focus on those most relevant to your interests and objectives

Training in the application of these disciplines is key to the development of knowledge and transferable skills. You will develop an understanding of the challenges and opportunities that exist in the wider consumer sector, for example the design and development of effective marketing and consumer policy strategies. You will also learn to critically analyse the socio-cultural, economic, technological, environmental and ethical contexts shaping consumer choice. Students registered on the 4-year programme are expected to undertake a period of professional training between Parts 2 and 3, either in the UK or internationally.

During the course of your studies at Reading, you will be expected to develop your academic and personal transferable skills, including analysis and critical thinking, problem solving, numeracy, research design, information handling, report writing, written and oral communication, team working, use of information technology and career management. You will be encouraged to enhance these skills through a variety of opportunities available outside your curriculum.

This programme comprises of a foundation year (Part 0) provided through the International Foundation Programme (IFP) which provides access to higher education in Britain to international students who do not possess the normal entry requirements of GCE Advanced level qualifications or the equivalent. Through the part 0 you will be equipped with subject specific and general study skills which will enable you to cope with the demands of undergraduate study. This is achieved through the provision of high quality teaching which is sympathetic to the needs of students from a wide range of educational backgrounds.

Foundation year:	In the Foundation year you will have the opportunity to develop transferable skills through the provision of a compulsory credit-bearing Academic Skills module. The key skills relate to Critical Thinking, Essay Writing, Research, Referencing and avoiding plagiarism, Group Work and Projects, Presentations, and Assessment and Examination techniques. You will also take three 40-credit modules as specified in the module information aligned to the ‘A Level’ entry requirements for the degree. If your level of English is below the standard specified for undergraduate study, one of these 40 credit modules must be International English. Students starting Part 0 in January will join Part 1 in September of the Same year.
Part 1:	Provides a grounding in marketing, consumer psychology and economics through a range of mediums, including practice-based projects, lectures and practical sessions. Students will be given training in economics and the mathematical and statistical ideas used by applied economists and business managers, in addition to developing skills in the acquisition, interpretation and presentation of quantitative and qualitative data for consumer research.
Part 2:	Enables you to build on learning from Part 1 with a particular emphasis on consumer attitudes and behaviour, digital marketing and management. You will also apply your research skills and knowledge in a branding project in partnership with Henley Business School. Available options provide an opportunity to develop a critical understanding in an area of interest such as, entrepreneurship or food retailing, and you will also have the opportunity to experience a mini professional placement.
Part 3:	Gives you the opportunity to focus more deeply on the consumer behaviour context, with in-depth exploration of marketing strategy, and contemporary marketing issues such as sustainable consumption, ethics and consumer policy. You will choose between a dissertation research project or an applied marketing project in relation to a topic, product or service of your choice. Students may also continue to apply their knowledge-base in a number of fields including business, psychology entrepreneurship and food. The emphasis in Part 3 is on the continued development of research skills, and on independent research and enquiry culminating in a dissertation or project in an area of interest.
