Programme information and content

With an ever-increasing world population and growing pressure on the world's finite resources, the analytical skills of agricultural economists are as relevant and in demand as ever. This degree programme is designed to provide you with a rigorous, stimulating and enjoyable training in agricultural economics. This programme will enable you to acquire the necessary skills to work as an agricultural economist in industry, government or nongovernmental organisations and will also provide the essential training required to undertake higher study in the area of Agricultural Economics.

Module information

The programme comprises of 180 credits, allocated across a range of compulsory and optional modules. Compulsory modules are listed.

Compulsory modules

Module	Name	Credits	Level
APME71	Econometrics	20	M
APME76	Resource and Environmental Economics	20	M
APME83	Consumer, Producers, Markets and Trade	20	M
IDM071	Research and study skills for independent learning	10	M
IDM072	Dissertation (International Development and Applied Economics)	60	M

The remaining credits will be taken from a list of optional modules from the School of Agriculture, Policy and Development or from an approved list of modules from across the University.

PATHWAYS

In addition to the Agricultural Economics compulsory modules above:

To qualify for MSc Agricultural Economics (Development) students must take at least 30 credits from the list of modules related to Development, as specified by the School of Agriculture, Policy and Development.

The remaining credits will be taken from the list of optional modules from the School of Agriculture, Policy and Development or from an approved list of modules from across the University. Part-time or

Part-time or flexible modular arrangements

The programme can be taken part-time over two years (for Home/EU students only). In the first year of study, a student will normally be required to complete optional modules totalling no less than 60 credits and no more than 80 credits in discussion with the Programme Director. These must include APME76. In the second year of study, the module IDM071 will be combined with IDM072 to become ADMDIS Dissertation (60 credits). Other module codes may change in 2024. The programme may not be completed over more than two years.

Additional costs of the programme

During your programme of study, you will incur some additional costs.

Where applicable, core textbooks recommended for student purchase may cost around £15 to £25 per module; there may be other books/resources which you would find it convenient to buy. Some books may be available second-hand, which will reduce costs. A wide range of resources to support your curriculum, including textbooks, more specialist studies, and electronic resources, are available through the library.

Printing and photocopying facilities are available on campus at a cost per A4 page of £0.05 (black and white) and £0.30 (colour). Essential costs in this area will be low as most coursework is submitted electronically.

A few optional modules may include study trips. For each participating student, the cost of transport and accommodation is not expected to exceed £350.

Costs are indicative and may vary according to optional modules chosen and are subject to inflation and other price fluctuations.

The estimates were calculated in 2022.

Optional modules

The optional modules available can vary from year to year. An indicative list of the range of optional modules for your Programme is set out in the Further Programme Information. Details of any additional costs associated with the optional modules, will be made available to you prior to the beginning of the programme. Entry to optional modules will be at the discretion of the University and subject to availability. Although the University tries to ensure you are able to take the optional modules in which you have expressed interest this cannot be guaranteed.

Placement opportunities

With the agreement of their dissertation supervisor, students may be allowed to study abroad or take up placements during the Summer Term as part of their dissertation work. With the explicit agreement of the Programme Director, the Dissertation may be researched and written away from the University.
