Programme information and content

The MRes in Politics and International Relations is designed primarily to prepare students for study at doctoral level, though it is also suitable for anyone else wishing to pursue research into political issues. It is particularly suitable for students who have a Master's degree that did not involve a substantial research training element, or for students who do not have a Master's degree but do have some background in the fields of Politics and International Relations. The core modules provide in-depth training in social science research methods and research philosophy. Additional, substantive modules are chosen from across the modules available on MA programmes within the Department of Politics and International Relations in consultation with the programme director and prospective dissertation supervisor. The dissertation will, in most cases, take the form of a research template and pilot in order to prepare for doctoral work.

Module information

The programme comprises of 180 credits, allocated across a range of compulsory and optional modules. Compulsory modules are listed.

Compulsory modules

Module	Name	Credits	Level
PIM12	Dissertation	60	M
PIM54	Philosophical Issues in the Social Sciences	20	M
PIM85	Introduction to Qualitative research methods in Politics and International Relations	20	M

PIM86	Introduction to Quantitative research methods in Politics and International Relations	20	M
-------	---	----	---

The remaining credits will be taken from a list of optional modules from the School of Politics, Economics and International Relations, or from an approved list of modules from across the University.

Part-time or flexible modular arrangements

The programme may be studied part-time over two consecutive years with the dissertation being submitted at the end of the second year of study.

Additional costs of the programme

Students are encouraged to discuss the purchase of textbooks or other resources with the module convenor before purchasing. Some books may be available second-hand, which will reduce costs. A range of resources to support your curriculum, including textbooks, electronic resources and computer facilities are available through the library and through both the Department of Economics and the Department of Politics and International Relations.

Printing and photocopying facilities are available on campus at a cost per A4 page of £0.05 (black and white) and £0.30 (colour). Essential costs in this area will be low as most coursework is submitted electronically.

Optional modules

The optional modules available can vary from year to year. An indicative list of the range of optional modules for your Programme is set out in the Further Programme Information. Details of any additional costs associated with the optional modules, will be made available to you prior to the beginning of the programme. Entry to optional modules will be at the discretion of the University and subject to availability. Although the University tries to ensure you are able to take the optional modules in which you have expressed interest this cannot be guaranteed.
