Programme information and content

This programme is open to students who have successfully completed the BSc Real Estate Leading to MSc/Dip Urban Planning and Development only.

The activities of planning and development professionals are fundamental to our environmental, social and economic development, and impact the lives of countless individuals.

The MSc Urban Planning and Development aims to take students who have already developed an in-depth understanding of planning and development through the BSc Real Estate Leading to MSc/Dip Urban Planning and Development and equip you with the necessary attitudes, knowledges and skills to pursue chartered planner status. In addition, the degree allows you to explore a range of specialist areas of planning and development.

The value of the programme lies in its professional accreditation, by the Royal Town Planning Institute (RTPI). Graduates from the programme are eligible to pursue a career as a chartered planner.

The programme is designed within a 180 credit modular structure with seven 20-credit modules, of which two are selected from a list of optional modules, and one 40-credit module; the Independent Study in Planning & Development. This credit weighting reflects the educational requirements of the Royal Town Planning Institute (RTPI), which are in-line with the general University scheme.

The first semester will ground you in core knowledges around the philosophical and regulatory underpinnings of planning, and further develop your knowledge of the real estate sector, complimenting the sustainability, place quality and design skills and knowledges developed through the BSc Real Estate Leading to MSc/Dip Urban Planning and Development. You will start applying these to develop your understanding of the scenarios that form the basis for your projects, through the first of a series of group and individual assignments. Alongside this, you will start to develop a range of skills in research, communication and employability that will underpin your academic and professional development throughout the course.

By the end of the first semester it is expected that you will have developed a clear understanding of the purpose and contribution of planning and development in shaping places at multiple scales.

The second semester gives you the opportunity to develop your understanding of specialist areas of knowledge through two elective modules, as well as starting to develop your own area of interest through an independent study. Simultaneously, you will continue to work on the scenarios introduced in Semester 1, moving through the process of developing and evaluating your responses, and presenting these to ‘clients’ and other ‘key stakeholders’. You will also take part in an international field-trip, using your research and analysis skills to hone your critical understanding of how planning and development processes in the UK compare to those operating in other contexts.

By the end of the second semester it is expected that you will be able to critically evaluate planning and development processes, including how this is shaped by the contemporary (and evolving) institutional context, how this compares with other contexts and how adopting different perspectives shapes the quality of places.

During the Summer period you will continue to engage in an independent study (started in Semester 1 and further developed in Semester 2), addressing a topic of your choosing, and allowing you to develop in-depth knowledge of a particular area. By the end of the third semester it is expected that you will be able to articulate the importance of your chosen theme of study and explain how your work contributes to the development of that theme.

Programme Learning Outcomes

-MSc in Urban Planning and Development

During the course of the Programme, you will have the opportunity to develop a range of skills, knowledge and attributes (known as learning outcomes) For this programme, these are:

Learning outcomes
1	Evaluate what it means to be a planning and development professional in multiple settings, including the importance of ethical practice, independent professional judgement and working with other built environment professionals.
2	Demonstrate the implications of different theories about why and how we plan, including for citizen involvement, balancing between conflicting obligations to clients, politicians and the public interest and the implications of planning decisions for multiple geographical and time scales.

3	Incorporate into decision-making the impacts of planning on the natural environment, including the importance of climate change mitigation and adaptation, and the varied impacts of environmental damage on different groups.
4	Demonstrate effective research and appraisal skills through data collection, quantitative and qualitative analysis, weighing evidence to reach sound conclusions and the ability to communicate these conclusions in a variety of ways.
5	Evaluate scenarios within the context of planning law, political arenas, decision-making processes, and negotiation with relevant stakeholders, including using professional judgement to generate clear recommendations.
6	Synthesise a range of evidence and knowledges to develop planning and policy frameworks that set out a positive vision for the future of a place, including the diverse range of groups within it.

You will be expected to engage in learning activities to achieve these Programme learning outcomes. Assessment of your modules will reflect these learning outcomes and test how far you have met the requirements for your degree.

To pass the Programme, you will be required to meet the progression or accreditation and award criteria set out below.

Optional modules

The optional modules available can vary from year to year. An indicative list of the range of optional modules for your programme can be found online in the Course Catalogue. Details of optional modules for each part, including any additional costs associated with the optional modules, will be made available to you prior to the beginning of the Part in which they are to be taken and you will be given an opportunity to express interest in the optional modules that you would like to take. Entry to optional modules will be at the discretion of the University and subject to availability and may be subject to pre-requisites, such as completion of another module. Although the University tries to ensure you are able to take the optional modules in which you have expressed interest this cannot be guaranteed.

Teaching and learning delivery

Teaching is organised in seven 20-credit modules and one 40-credit module; each credit representing 10 hours of student effort. The relationship between class contact in the form of lectures, workshops, seminars, tutorials and student-centred learning in the form of individual and groupwork-based research and project/case studies is varied across all modules and is set out in the individual module descriptions. All modules are designed to deliver level 7 outcomes.

Within each of these modules, the overall aim is for students to be able to understand the knowledge obtained and be critically aware of the theoretical and practical implications of the material.

Elements of your programme will be delivered via digital technology. You'll be taught how to use key software packages such as SketchUp and you'll have access to range of key databases from RICS, the Building Cost Information Service and Westlaw amongst others.

The scheduled teaching and learning activity hours and amount of technology enhanced learning activity for your programme will depend upon your module combination. In addition, you will undertake some self-scheduled teaching and learning activities, designed by and/or involving staff, which give some flexibility for you to choose when to complete them. You will also be expected to undertake guided independent study. Information about module study hours including contact hours and the amount of independent study which a student is normally expected to undertake for a module is indicated in the relevant module description.

Accreditation details

- Royal Town Planning Institute (RTPI)
- Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB)
- EFMD Quality Improvement System (EQUIS)

*Both the Diploma and the full Master's degree are RTPI-accredited only when students have completed the BSc Real Estate Leading to MSc/Dip Urban Planning and Development.

In order to meet the RTPI's Assessment of Professional Competence requirements candidates must demonstrate that they have met the indicative learning outcomes detailed in the RTPI's Policy Statement on Initial Planning Education. This is achieved by passing all of the Compulsory modules with a mark of 50% or more.

Assessment

Students will be assessed by a range of methods including individual and group assignments comprising applied problem solving, essays, reports, oral presentations, and projects. Examinations feature in some of the optional modules. Students will have the right to re-sit any module once. Normally examination and assignment re-sits will be in late August/early September. Any re-assessment in the Independent Study module would normally take place within one year.

Progression

BSc Real Estate Leading to MSc/Dip Urban Planning and Development only.

Progression from the BSc Real Estate to the Diploma/MSc Urban Planning and Development Students on the '3+1' programme must pass all the compulsory Part 3 modules and be awarded the BSc Real Estate with Honours (upper second class or better, except where mitigating circumstances apply) to be eligible to register for the Diploma/MSc in Urban Planning and Development programme.
