Programme information and content

This programme will give you a deep understanding of the world of finance, financial markets and the behavioural factors that influence investment and corporate financial decisions and systematically affect market outcomes. The programme aims to provide theoretical and practical insights into the field of behavioural finance with a rigorous curriculum enriched by Nobel prize winners for economics, pioneer behavioural economists/scientists, and market practice. The graduates will be equipped not only with essential finance knowledge but also an understanding of the irrationalities of market decision-makers and how financial markets really work. The course also equips students with the relevant professional practices and ethical values to thrive in the global community and to advance confidently within the competitive workplace.

Students considering a career as a financial analyst, consultant or behavioural researcher will have exclusive access to tailored modules partnered with the school of psychology and clinical language sciences at the university of reading.

Programme Learning Outcomes

-MSc Behavioural Finance (12 months) (full-time)

During the course of the Programme, you will have the opportunity to develop a range of skills, knowledge and attributes (known as learning outcomes) For this programme, these are:

Learning outcomes

Core knowledge in finance:

1 Consider and critically evaluate relevant finance theories and develop awareness of psychological factors within finance economics studies, and demonstrate the analytical and evaluative skills required of finance professionals.

Technical skills in data analysis:

2 Develop and apply the relevant skills to identify and analyse quantitative and qualitative data by undertaking evidence-based research in behavioural finance and critically analysing the findings.

Professional skills:

Develop, demonstrate and reflect on the professional values and skills, including self-discipline, creative thinking, good time management, and team work which are required in the demanding finance industry.

Global context:

Recognise the value of diversity of multiculturalism in financial markets and organisations, and develop strategies to enhance them.

Commercial awareness:

5 Identify, evaluate and address the problems and challenges for financial markets and organizations and the external environment in the context of financial theories and practice.

Careers:

Identify and develop the employability skills relevant to the finance industry, reflecting on how they can help you address the opportunities and challenges faced in building a career in the sector.

You will be expected to engage in learning activities to achieve these Programme learning outcomes. Assessment of your modules will reflect these learning outcomes and test how far you have met the requirements for your degree.

To pass the Programme, you will be required to meet the progression or accreditation and award criteria set out below.

Part-time or flexible modular arrangements

This programme is only available on a full-time basis.

Placement opportunities

An optional summer module gives students on the 12-month programme the opportunity to undertake a work placement.

Study abroad opportunities

Students may have the opportunity to study abroad by selecting a summer elective delivered at Ca' Foscari University of Venice, Italy.

Optional modules

The optional modules available can vary from year to year. An indicative list of the range of optional modules for your programme can be found online in the Course Catalogue. Details of optional modules for each part, including any additional costs associated with the optional modules, will be made available to you prior to the beginning of the Part in which they are to be taken and you will be given an opportunity to express interest in the optional modules that you would like to take. Entry to optional modules will be at the discretion of the University and subject to availability and may be subject to pre-requisites, such as completion of another module. Although the University tries to ensure you are able to take the optional modules in which you have expressed interest this cannot be guaranteed.

Teaching and learning delivery

The major teaching and learning journey is organised in modules. The method of delivery varies among modules, especially in terms of the proportions of time allocated to lectures, seminars and dealing-room sessions. The total study hours for the programme are 1800 hours and 200 hours for each module bearing 20 credits. A typical module contains 22 hours of lectures plus 10 hours of seminars, tutorials or workshops. They could be delivered face-to-face or combined with other innovative teaching approaches and inclusive digital learning experiences. Students will receive support from module convenors, teaching assistants. In addition to the scheduled teaching hours, students are expected to conduct independent studying.

By the end of this programme, not only do students gain the knowledge of finance theoretically and practically but also this module offers exclusive modules to equip students with the cutting-edge interdisciplinary subject, behavioural finance, together with the psychology department.

To develop students' professional and career skills, and help them to become lifelong learners, the ICMAC, HBS and the UoR also offer students a arrange of support such as career services, the university library, placement and experience centre, in-sessional English support programme, the study advice, mathematics support centre, IT services etc.

Academic tutors, student unions, the medical practice and advisers in the student services centre are also always onside to support students wellness while studying in the ICMAC.

Elements of your programme will be delivered via digital technology.

The scheduled teaching and learning activity hours and amount of technology enhanced learning activity for your programme will depend upon your module combination. In addition, you will undertake some self-scheduled teaching and learning activities, designed by and/or involving staff, which give some flexibility for you to choose when to complete them. You will also be expected to undertake guided independent study. Information about module study hours including contact hours and the amount of independent study which a student is normally expected to undertake for a module is indicated in the relevant module description.

Additional costs of the programme

For textbooks and similar learning resources, we recommend that you budget approximately £300. Some books may be available second-hand, which will reduce costs. A range of resources to support your curriculum, including textbooks and electronic resources, are available through the Central Library and the Business School Academic Resource Centre. Reading lists and module-specific costs are typically listed on the individual module descriptions.

Subject to your module selection, you may be required to purchase sundry materials (i.e., printing). Essential for printing and photocopying will be low as most coursework is submitted electronically.

Many students find it advantageous to have their own personal computing facilities, but there are central facilities available.

If students choose optional modules which are offered abroad, they may face additional costs for travel and accommodation. For example, we recommend a budget of approximately £1,200 for attending ICM612 Algorithmic and High Frequency Trading in Venice, Italy.

Costs are indicative and may vary according to optional modules chosen and are subject to inflation and other price fluctuations. The estimates were calculated in 2023.

For further information about your Programme please refer to the Programme Handbook and the relevant module descriptions, which are available at http://www.reading.ac.uk/module/. The Programme Handbook and the relevant module descriptions do not form part of your Terms and Conditions with the University of Reading.
