Guidance for setting up processes to deal with Student Complaints and Appeals with Partner Institutions:

The University has produced the following guidance for staff considering student-related matters with Partner Institutions.

The advice below is to be considered as a guide of best practice and is not definitive. Where a partnership will benefit from a different approach to that listed below the proposer is asked to explain their rationale.

Different types of partnership may benefit from different approaches as outlined in the table.

In accordance with OIA guidance¹, any agreement with a Partner and any communications with students must clearly state whose policy and procedure they should follow in relation to complaints, appeals and extenuating circumstances and whose policies and procedures apply in relation to disciplinary matters, fitness to study and academic misconduct.

1. Guidance for Complaints:

Where a complaint relates to the academic standards and/or quality of the learning opportunity, we would expect this complaint to be handled informally by the delivering institution. Stage 1 and 2 of the complaint procedure should be referred to UoR where the student is studying a UoR module. If a student is studying a partner-owned module which is credited towards the UoR Degree, the partner may handle the stage 1 complaint, but stage 2 should be referred back to UoR.

For complaints about non-academic services delivered by a Partner institution, in the first instance the partner should try to resolve this informally. Stage 1 complaints should be considered by the partner and Stage 2 may be considered by UoR or the Partner.

Where a Partner takes responsibility for any part of the Complaints Procedure, all cases and outcomes must be communicated to UoR.

2. Guidance for Academic Appeals:

For appeals in relation to a UoR programme or a UoR-owned module these should be handled by the UoR Appeals process.

Where a Partner's module(s) is credited towards a UoR programme, it may be possible to follow the partner's processes for appeals in relation to these specific modules.

As part of the partner due diligence/approval process the Senior Quality Support Officer for Partnerships (CQSD) can advise as to whether a partner's appeals process is comparable to UoR; this will be based on the comparability of the appeals process and the grounds considered for an appeal. Alternatively partner modules may be considered within the UoR appeals process.

Where a Partner takes responsibility for any part of the Academic Appeals Procedure, all cases and outcomes must be communicated to UoR.

3. Guidance for Academic Misconduct:

Where a student is suspected of academic misconduct in relation to a UoR-owned module/assessment this should be handled by the UoR Academic Misconduct process.

For a Partner-owned module, it may be possible to follow the partner's processes for academic misconduct in this instance. As part of the partner due diligence/approval process the Senior Quality Support Officer for Partnerships (CQSD) can advise as to whether a partner's processes are comparable to UoR; this will be based on the comparability of the investigation process, the criteria used to distinguish academic misconduct and the possible penalties applied. Alternatively partner modules may be considered within the UoR academic misconduct process.

All cases of Academic misconduct and the outcomes of any decisions should be communicated to UoR for monitoring purposes.

4. Guidance for Disciplinary Matters:

Students should remain in 'good standing' of both institutions throughout their period of study.

The current OIA Guidance does not include non-academic disciplinary matters. Staff should speak directly to CQSD (Senior Quality Support Officer [Partnerships]) for guidance on an individual basis.

5. Guidance for Fitness to Study and Fitness to Practice:

A student who is studying on a UoR programme should be considered under the University's policy and procedures regarding Fitness to Study.

For Dual or Joint Degrees the partners Fitness to Study policy and procedures may be applied depending upon the terms of the Agreement. As part of the partner due diligence/approval process the Senior Quality Support Officer for Partnerships (CQSD) can advise as to whether a partner's processes are comparable to UoR.

Fitness to Practice cases should be considered under the University's policy and procedures.

6. Guidance for Extenuating Circumstances Procedures:

An ECF for a UoR programme, module and assessment should be considered using the UoR policy and procedures.

Extensions and extenuating circumstances for Partner-owned modules may be considered under the partner's processes. As part of the partner due diligence/approval process the Senior Quality Support Officer for Partnerships (CQSD) can advise as to whether a partner's ECF process is comparable to UoR; this will be based on the comparability of the ECF process, the criteria used to distinguish extenuating circumstances and the possible extensions/allowance applied. Alternatively partner modules can be considered within the UoR ECF process.

The table below summarises the guidance for these processes:

Please consult the Senior Quality Support Officer for Partnerships who will be able to advise you on your individual partnership proposal.
